1968 Black and Gold . Volume LVII

R.J. Reynolds High School · Winston-Salem, North Carolina

Vast and sometimes rumored unfriendly, Reynolds has been our home for three years. We approached it somewhat awed by its immensity and overwhelming labyrinth of halls. Having entered the main floor from the landing, we were confused to discover that the office was downstairs. Soon however, we learned that Reynolds is more than only a building. Within its heart thrive dedicated teachers, alternately triumphant and despondent coaches, glittering Dancing Boots, unpretentious achievers, future automobile mechanics and nuclear scientists.

As the editors of the 1968 Black and Gold, we have tried to show an over-all view of the many facets of our school. We hope it will recall memories, forgotten lines of literature, or sparkling laughter to those who read it. We present The Reynolds Panorama.

Administration guides system

Issues concerning the welfare of the students are brought before the school board and here the good and bad points are discussed. Each year at a board meeting the members set the yearly budget for the entire school system.

Deciding whether or not school will meet on snowy days is one of the administrative staff's minor duties, but it is one that all students are aware of. But more important, the administrative staff supervises the work of all the schools. They are responsible for making the Winston-Salem Forsyth County schools run smoothly.

Mr. Robert Deaton, principal, is the administrative head at Reynolds. His assistant, Mr. Joe Hauser, assumes many of the disciplinary problems and difficulties that appear in the Reynolds Panorama.

Mr. Deaton places important correspondence in the faculty boxes.

Mrs. C.G. Grubbs, Dr. Lillian B. Lewis, Mr. Richard C. Erwin, Mr. Roy Ray, Mr. William M. Knott, Jr., Mr. Clyde G. Barber, Jr., Mrs. G.G. Young, Mr. Whit B. East, Jr., Mr. Carl H. Russell.

Eugene Johnston, assistant superintendent; C.T. Leinbach, comptroller; Raymond Sarbaugh, associate superintendent; Marvin Ward, superintendent; Ned Smith, associate superintendent; Robert Blevins, assistant superintendent; Leo Morgan, assistant superintendent.

DEDICATION

Seniors honor educator for diligence

"To be rather than to seem," a quotation in her college annual, has been her motto in life. What more fitting description could be found for her?

She is a teacher of mathematics. Mathematics, that subject which Bertrand Russell so ably described: "Mathematics, possesses not only truth, but supreme beauty—a beauty cold and austere, like that of sculpture, without appeal to any part of our weaker nature, sublimely pure, and capable of a stern perfection such as only the greatest art can show."

This enthusiastic teacher has taught at Reynolds for many years. During this time she has endeared herself to all with whom she has come in contact, teachers and students alike.

After-school hours are spent working with the Student Council and attending school athletic activities.

Her work has been as distinctive for excellence as for length of service. Her personality has influenced class after class of high school students.

To one who has shown herself to be a real friend to all, the Senior Class is honored to dedicate the 1968 Black and Gold to Mrs. Katharine Reich.

In her class during the second semester, Mrs. Reich begins a study of the trigonometric functions.

Mr. Deaton, Mr. Hauser assume administrative duties

To undertake a job of the magnitude and responsibility which managing the affairs of Reynolds High School affords, one must be willing to unselfishly give his time and effort. He must also possess the skill to supervise the needs of over sixteen hundred students. Without efficiency in this department, the existence of the school would be unthinkable.

From principal to secretary the Reynolds office staff proves that they can meet the requirements for their jobs.

Through this department are channeled all transactions from class rings and lunch permits, to the invitations of well-known lecturers. In effect, the office is the heart of Reynolds.

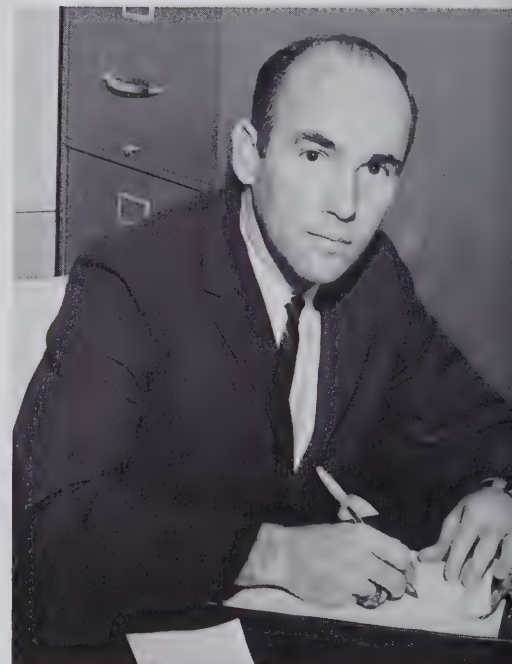

Mr. Robert Deaton, B.S.; M.S.

Momentarily escaping the numerous worries and responsibilities involved in being principal of a school as large as Reynolds, Mr. Deaton offers a friendly "hello" to students passing through the first-floor lobby.

Mrs. Mary Hart and Mrs. Mae McCuen

From filing to approving lunch permits and issuing parking stickers, both of these busy secretaries have helped Reynolds function at its best.

Mr. Joe Hauser, B.S.; M.A.

Mr. Hauser served Reynolds for his third year as assistant principal. Having managed routine administrative work and discipline of the school, he acted as a coordinator for the student body, the faculty, and the principal.

Problems solved through guidance

"Which college best suits me?" "How do I apply for the Moorehead Scholarship? Are my college board scores too low?"

Questions like these and many more are answered every day by the R.J.R. counselors, as they strive to help students in every possible way. Students look to the guidance counselors as the key to their future.

Mr. Robert P. Jones, B.S.; M.E.
While finding his first interest in his guidance work with young people, Mr. Jones elects sports and dabbling in a home workshop as his main outside interests.

Miss Janie Weaver, A.B.
As well as advising seniors, Miss Weaver helped with all college transcripts. This year she also sponsored the Girl's Council.

Mrs. Roberta S. Meyer, B.A.
While serving as a guidance counselor, Mrs. Meyer, an avid seamstress and bridge player, finds time to study at UNC-G and to meet the needs of her family.

LIBRARY

Library serves as a quiet haven

Mrs. Elizabeth Stroupe, B.A.
With her smiling countenance and easy manner, Mrs. Stroupe guides students through the maze of the Reynolds High School Library.

Mrs. Elizabeth Sink, B.A.; M.A.
Although membership in three P.T.A.'s occupies most of her spare time in winter, Mrs. Sink has the summer to travel.

Mrs. Stroup and Mrs. Sink work diligently to keep the Reynolds library a quiet and orderly, yet purposeful place to work. Student pages assist the librarians with this task during their study halls. Together, they strive to supply students with an enormous variety of good books and any other outside reading material that may be available.

Students find that the quiet, restful atmosphere of the library is entirely different from that of the hustling, bustling R.J.R. halls. The library is a place where one takes refuge and buries himself in the worlds of fantasy, reality and adventure.

Mrs. Burke
After helping the students with their problems, Mrs. Burke, the guidance secretary, enjoys knitting and doing things out of the ordinary. The summers mean trips to Florida, California, New England, or Canada.

Mathematics: Fascinating world of numerical functions

Mrs. Katherine Reich, A.B.

Besides teaching math, advising the Student Council, and heading the Math department, Mrs. Reich uses some of her zeal by sewing and doing needle-work. She also enjoys music.

Mathematics, with all its complicated formulas and figures, is a precise course requiring knowledge and logical reasoning. It is not a stationary field, but is constantly changing with the times. Here at Reynolds, any form of math from Applied Business Math to calculus are the points of study in this field.

Headed by Mrs. Reich, the math department consists of highly skilled teachers. Each teacher attends in-service classes during the year to prepare for changes in mathematical methods.

This year, outside instruction from Wake Forest has come in to aid in the teaching of Advanced Placement students. This class meets in long sessions to learn about and discuss the elements of higher mathematics.

Miss Karon Bush, B.A.

A recent graduate of UNC-G, Miss Bush teaches the advanced math courses. In her spare time she watches the Smothers Brothers and makes her own clothes.

Mrs. Mary Compton, B.S.

Mrs. Mary Compton, who teaches Algebra I and II, has many extra-curricular interests. These include sponsoring the Junior class, reading, and attending the athletic activities here at Reynolds.

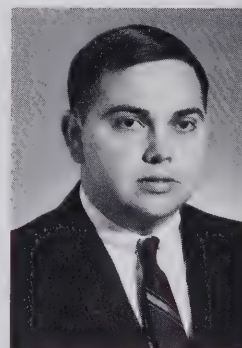

Mrs. Lucinda D. Moser, A.B.

Mrs. Moser leads her Advanced Algebra classes through quadratic functions, square roots, and the binomial theorem with a quick wit and pleasing personality.

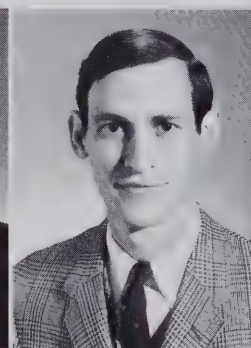

William A. Bingham, B.S.; M.A.

Much of Mr. Bingham's time is devoted to his General Math and first year Algebra classes. He enjoys sports, especially football, basketball, and baseball.

C.B. Ferree, B.S.

Having graduated from N.C. State, Mr. Ferree teaches Geometry and Algebra at Reynolds. He sponsors the Key Club and enjoys sports.

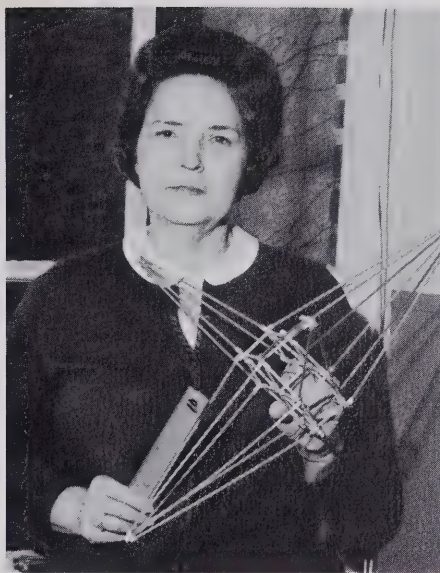

Mr. Rodney Williams B.S.

Teaching the experimental Harvard Physics Project highlighted Mr. Williams' year at Reynolds, as well as sponsoring the Key Club.

Miss Linda E. Farrar, A.B.

Miss Farrar, who teaches Algebra and Geometry, is very enthusiastic about going to Reynolds games. She also sponsors the Student Council.

Mrs. Caroline Spencer, B.S.

When not teaching Algebra or Geometry, Mrs. Spencer enjoys playing bridge. She is also in charge of the book room and is responsible for delivering books to the students.

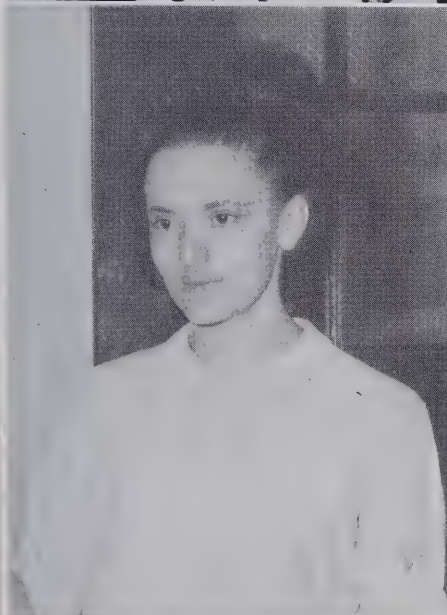

Mrs. Mildred Rash, B.S.

After a day of assisting students in Algebra and Geometry, Mrs. Rash relaxes by playing bridge and reading. She also serves as Junior Red Cross sponsor.

Miss Sara Williams, A.B.

Besides teaching Geometry and General Math, Miss Williams enjoys reading and cooking. She also sponsors junior girls in the Serviteers Club.

Mrs. Nancy White, A.B.

Mrs. White's humorous comments and friendly personality make Algebra and Geometry pleasant "pills" to swallow. Sponsoring the House of Representatives is also part of her schedule.

For Joan Smith, Math became clear as glass. For others . . .

SCIENCE

Reynolds boasts new H.P. 2 course

Under the direction of Mr. Williams, Reynolds was given the honor of being one of eighty schools in the nation to try the experimental Harvard Project Physics Course. Approximately fifty-five students took part in the new project, which is scheduled to go into actual usage in the fall of 1969.

As were many departments, the science department received several new faculty members. Miss Anderson, Mrs.

Kirby and Miss McCraw each furthered the study of gangly earthworms and chromosomes: Biology.

Of course there were to be found the standard science courses offered at R.J.R. Along with the usual Biology, Chemistry, and physics are their coordinating Advanced Placement departments under the guidance of Mrs. Steelman, Mr. Wilson and Mr. Williams, respectively.

Miss Mataline Collette, M.E.
When Miss Collette is not grading papers for her five chemistry classes, she enjoys working in her yard and playing bridge with friends.

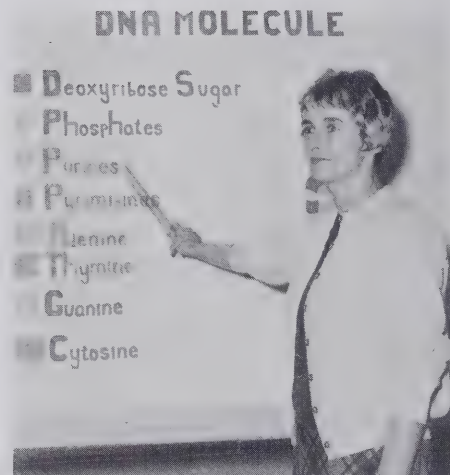

Miss Shirley McCraw, B.S.
Apart from teaching biology and physical science, Miss McCraw enjoys reading, traveling, and hiking. Making many of her own clothes is another of her pastimes.

Mrs. Catherine V. Steelman, B.S.; M.E.
Mrs. Steelman, a sophomore biology teacher, also teaches the Advanced Placement Biology course. She co-sponsors the National Honor Society.

Mr. Harry W. Wilson, A.B.
Labs are an important part of Mr. Wilson's three regular chemistry courses and two advanced placement classes. During holidays Mr. Wilson visits his home state of Ohio.

Miss Geraldine Anderson, B.A.
Teaching Biology at Reynolds is a new and enjoyable experience for Miss Anderson. When time permits, she enjoys golf, tennis, traveling, and water skiing.

Miss Kay Kirby, B.S.
In her first year of teaching at Reynolds, Mrs. Kirby teaches biology. She recently began work on her Masters Degree.

Mrs. Elizabeth Roddy, B.S.
Sponsoring the G.A.A., Mrs. Roddy, girls' Physical Education teacher, spends her spare time going on retreats and enjoying activities with the R.J.R. girls.

Mrs. Jo Brower, B.S.
When not commuting from her home in Greensboro to teach girls' P.E. at Reynolds, Mrs. Brower, an active church member, reads, sings, or listens to jazz.

Mr. Douglas Crater, B.A.; M.A.
Being head coach of the wrestling team, weight lifting instructor, and assistant football coach, Mr. Crater finds little time to play golf, his favorite sport.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

Sports faculty keeps RJR in shape

After the moaning, groaning and complaining about sore muscles had faded away, the mark of excellence was apparent this year in all sports included in the boys' and girls' athletic program. R.J.R. was particularly proud of football coach Herman Bryson who was named Coach of the Year in the Central 4-A Conference.

Football victories mingled with those in wrestling, swimming, basketball even modern dance routines and G.A.A. retreats prove that Reynolds is really outstanding.

For Juniors, unsightly bulges melted away into trim muscles under the rigors of P.E.

Mr. Herman Bryson, B.S.; M.A.
Recently proclaimed coach of the year in the 4-A Conference for the second consecutive year, Mr. Herman Bryson heads the physical education department at Reynolds.

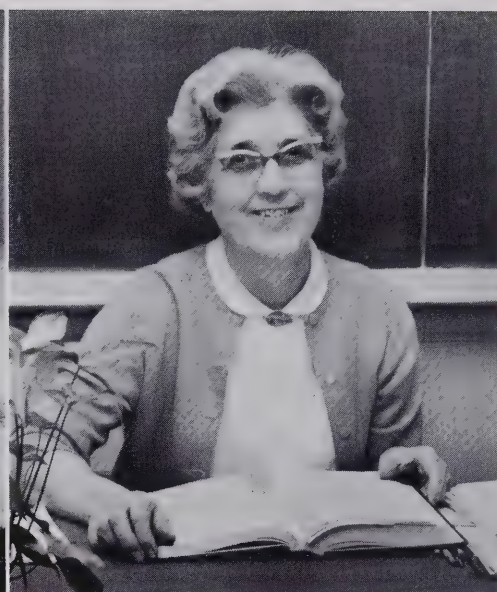

Mrs. Nancy Lamb, B.A.

Mrs. Lamb, impressed in her first year of teaching, is best known for teaching the basics of formal compositions. She recently graduated from Wake Forest.

Miss Jackie Faye Bullard, B.S.

Besides teaching sophomore English, Miss Bullard's duties at Reynolds include sponsoring the Dancing Boots and Majorettes. She also coaches girls in some afternoon athletic events.

Mrs. Julia Ebert, A.B.

Mrs. Ebert, who serves as sponsor of the sophomore class, believes that through American Literature she familiarizes her junior English students with our country's heritage.

Mrs. Evelyn C. Garrison, A.B.; M.E.

Methods of diagramming a sentence and good speaking habits are eagerly studied and quickly picked up by the students of Mrs. Garrison's sophomore English and Public Speaking classes.

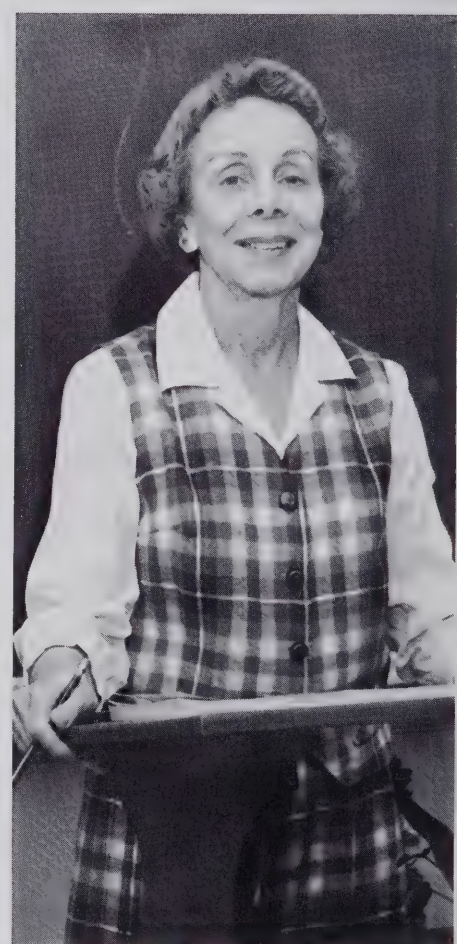

Mrs. Erline H. Martin, A.B.

With enthusiasm, Mrs. Martin guides her English classes through the literary world of Shakespeare, Homer, Sophocles, Aristotle, and a host of others.

Mrs. Mary Boyles, B.A.; M.A.

When not teaching her students the fundamentals of writing book reports and the basics of grammar, Mrs. Boyles enjoys reading.

Mrs. Marjorie Stephenson, B.A.

In addition to teaching to sophomores the structure of English and its best use, Mrs. Stephenson also serves as Dean of Girls and supervisor of the nurse's room.

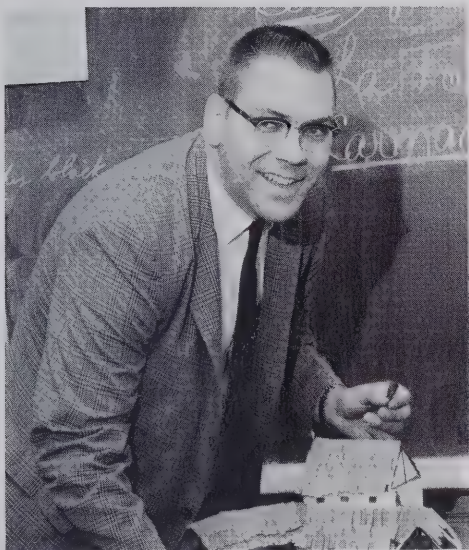

English department stresses self-expression as goal

In order to express himself in both oral and written composition, one must be thoroughly schooled in the mechanics and the literary works of the English language. The importance of this schooling cannot be stressed enough.

Headed by Miss Kapp, the English department offers in its curricula the works of George Eliot, Emerson, Sophocles and Shaw, as well as many others. To supplement the literary aspect of English is the ever-familiar grammar.

Study in greater depth is evidenced in the Advanced Placement courses taught by Mrs. Martin.

Mr. Jack Tesh, B.A.

Mr. Tesh adds humor to his senior English class while teaching Macbeth and A Tale of Two Cities. He also coaches football and track.

Miss Elizabeth B. Kapp, A.B.

Miss Kapp's junior English class received a complete study of grammar and American literature. She is head of the English department, and sponsors the Senior Marshals.

Mrs. Janice Owings, A.B.; M.A.

Stacks of annuals, a busy typewriter, eight bulletin boards, five filing cabinets, copy-filled desks, and picture-laden tables reveal endless hours of supervised work in the journalism room.

Mrs. Goldie A. Hagen, B.A.

When not aiding her students with their German, Mrs. Hagen relaxes with her knitting. She commented that when she has time she enjoys cooking.

Miss Lillian T. Rhodes, A.B.; M.A.
With her sharp wit and amusing comments, Miss Rhodes leads five classes of seniors through the obstacles of English literature and grammar.

*Miss Lucile Edwards
B.A.*

Miss Edwards, besides instilling in her seniors many composition and literature fundamentals, enjoys sharing with her students her travel and reading experiences.

*Miss Freida Nordman
B.A.*

A graduate of Lenoir-Rhyne College, Miss Nordman teaches English II and III. She enjoys music, dancing, and working with the Drama Club.

Clubs add flair to language classes' atmosphere

Twelfth Night parties, Roman banquets, fiestas, and German "fests" are much anticipated by the foreign language students here at Reynolds. These very informal gatherings enable participants to make use of their knowledge of the language they are studying, as well as sampling food typical of the country.

Managed by Mrs. Hamrick, the language lab makes it possible not only to hear a native speaker but also to listen to your own mistakes played back on tape. After finishing the course, a person can at least ask for a glass of water in a language other than English.

Mrs. Minkley and other teachers gather in conversation at the teachers' boxes during report card time.

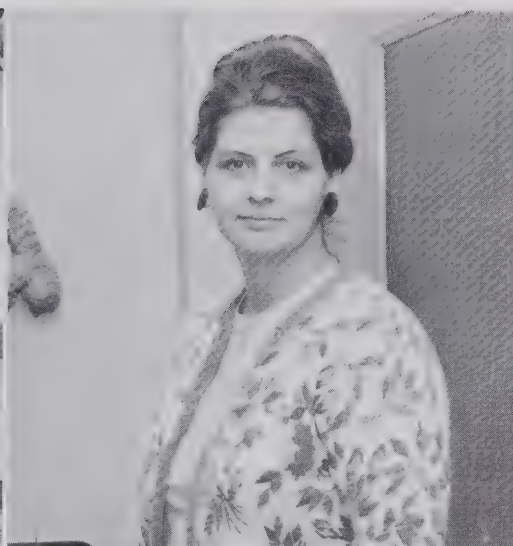

Mrs. Margaret McDermott, A.B.; M.E.
Mrs. McDermott, with her pleasant sense of humor, proves that Latin is not a dead language. She not only teaches Latin I through IV, but also is the sponsor for the Senior class.

Mrs. Aileen Hepler
Mrs. Hepler, whose hobby is traveling, has made four trips to Germany, and plans another this summer. After school, she enjoys reading.

Mrs. Judith C. Minkley, B.A.
 "Parlez-vous français?" Mrs. Minkley does as she teaches her French III and IV classes. A newcomer at Reynolds, she shares her bubbling personality with the classes.

Miss Clyde Williams, A.B.; B.S.
 Miss Williams, a Latin-music lover, sparks her three Spanish courses with her enthusiastic personality and sense of humor. Her hobby is reading.

Mrs. Hortensia Villalon, B.S.
 Mrs. Villalon, who came to Winston-Salem from Cuba in 1961, teaches Spanish III, IV, and V. She sponsors the Spanish Club, and knits as a hobby.

Mrs. Jane Staton, B.A.
 Not only does Mrs. Staton teach Latin at Reynolds, but at Wiley Junior High School as well. Her first year at Reynolds, Mrs. Staton still has to cover the distance between Wiley and Reynolds in the allotted four minutes.

Mrs. Marilyn Nipp, B.A.; M.A.
 Mrs. Marilyn B. Nipp, who taught Latin in her first year at Reynolds, moved to Winston-Salem from Muncie, Indiana. Her hobbies are playing chess and raising tropical fish.

Mrs. Elizabeth T. Hamrick
 Helping to make foreign languages more personal and useful is the responsibility of Mrs. Hamrick, who supervises the Language Lab.

*Mrs. Janie Donaldson
 A.B.*
 Having the ability to work with students has helped Mrs. Donaldson teach French at Reynolds for the past three years.

Mrs. Dianne Broyles, B.A.
 In her first full year at R.J.R., Mrs. Broyles teaches Spanish. For relaxation, she listens to classical music or plays the piano or organ.

Commercial courses insure future

For a person to be well versed in the mechanics of business functions is a useful and an admirable trait. Mrs. Mitchell, Mrs. Still, and Mrs. Fitzhugh instruct students in typing, shorthand, and accounting, while Mrs. Angel supervises the Distributive Education members in their on-the-job training.

These commercial courses are not designed merely for those who plan to enter the business world. Whether typing a term paper, balancing a budget, or completing the annual income tax forms, business education will prove always to be an asset.

Mrs. Hazel Mitchell, B.A.; M.E.

Although teaching typing and shorthand keeps her busy most of the time, Mrs. Mitchell also enjoys cooking and playing bridge.

Mrs. Louise Still, A.B.

Although her typing and shorthand class take up most of her time, Mrs. Still always enjoys being with her four children.

Mrs. Clara Fitzhugh, B.S.; M.E.

Mrs. Fitzhugh keeps her students alert in her business courses by telling anecdotes and adding philosophical remarks which have often proved a help to students.

DRIVER TRAINING

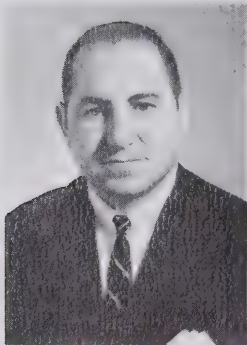

Weather postpones driving instruction

"But Mr. Pelech, all the other cars are going 65, why do I have to go 35?? Are you afraid of my driving??"

Throughout the year, the driving education teachers brave the odds of their "doom," as they teach students the fundamentals of driving and the rules of safety.

One of the most cherished memories of one's sophomore year, is the white paper stating, "Sally Jones has successfully completed the in-car course."

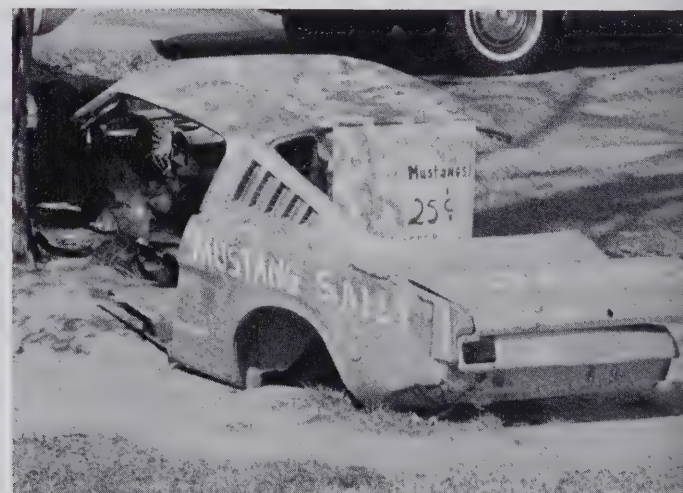

*Mr. Michael Pelech

Possessing nerves of steel, Mr. Pelech teaches students to maneuver the driver education cars. Managing the auditorium is also his duty.

Mr. Bob Cox, A.B.

Mr. Cox, a driver's education teacher and head baseball coach, also serves as assistant varsity coach for football and basketball.

He never did his homework in Driver's Education. Did you?

Home Ec students learn home crafts

This year the Reynolds Home Economics department had a busy year. Sewing, child care, and foods along with interior decoration and consumer education were the fields taught by Mrs. Hope Harman to her three-year classes. Some specific projects of the home economics classes were the dressing of dolls for the Christmas toyshop and the displaying of products in the cases outside Room 108. They also catered for several teas held by different organizations during the year.

Mrs. Hope Harman, B.S.
Mrs. Harman, who makes homemakers out of Reynolds girls in her Home Economics classes, also takes time for interior decorating and sponsoring the Health Careers Club.

Mrs. Sara T. Angel, B.S.

Mrs. Angel devotes most of her time to her Distributive Education classes; however, she also serves as DECA sponsor. She enjoys sewing and knitting in her spare time.

INDUSTRIAL ARTS

Students receive valuable trade fundamentals

Mr. Jack T. Driver

Mr. Driver enjoys teaching a trade to high school boys so they may have a salable skill to offer the needs of local businesses.

Mr. Clark O. Taylor, B.S.

Mr. Taylor teaches machine woodworking and drafting. He is the Industrial Arts Club sponsor and varsity Tennis coach.

Shop classes offered the student training for a trade or for a hobby. Many boys in machine woodworking found their knowledge and skill very beneficial in turning wagon wheels into coffee tables.

Few girls were daring enough this year to venture to the shop, but those who did found it a rewarding experience. Several girls, enrolled in the general drafting class, learned the fine points of an occupation that is in need of young ladies.

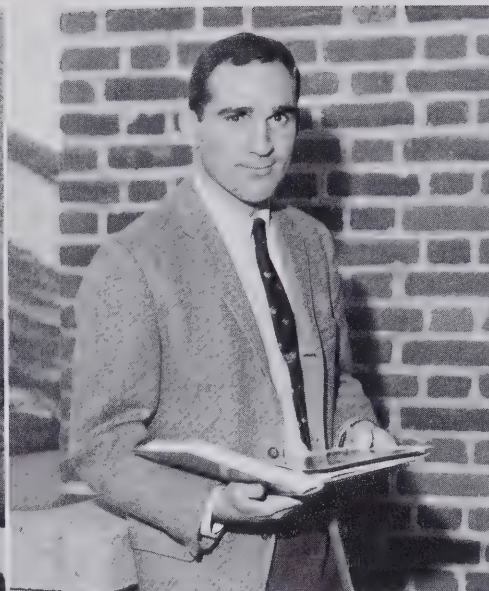

Again this year, the Industrial Arts Club sponsored a Christmas toy drive. The members of the club repaired over three hundred toys donated by the student body.

Miss Annie Graham Caldwell, A.B.; B.S.

Besides teaching U.S. History to Reynolds students, Miss Caldwell enjoys sponsoring the Pep Board and the varsity cheerleaders. In her spare time, she enjoys reading and cooking.

Mr. Howard Hurt, B.A.

When not leading his American history classes through the American Revolution and the Civil War, Mr. Hurt serves as coach of the basketball, track, and cross-country teams.

Mrs. JoAnn Raulerson, B.A.

As a world history teacher, Mrs. Raulerson finds extra time limited but fills her summer months by assisting her husband at their camp in Virginia for boys and girls.

SOCIAL SCIENCE

Trips, term papers keep students and faculty busy

Mr. Phillip Ashley, B.S.

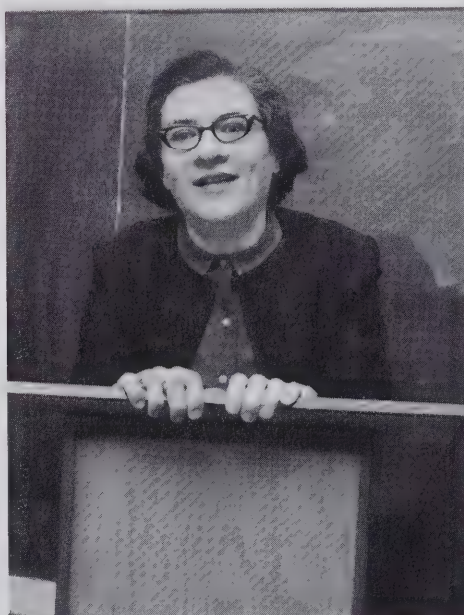

With a great love for history, Mr. Ashley puts his enthusiasm across to his students. When not teaching European history, he enjoys golf, tennis, and reading.

Students in the new humanities course offered this year were treated to music, films, and writings. Humanities was one of several experimental courses available at Reynolds.

Advanced Placement history classes, again invaded New York City on their annual Easter trip. Broadway plays, plush restaurants, and side trips to Princeton and Columbia rounded out the busy schedule of events.

Term papers kept many of the United States and world history students occupied for many weeks, and teachers occupied long after the papers were in.

Miss Peggy Benbow, A.B.; M.A.

After graduating from Reynolds High School and Meredith College, Miss Benbow earned her masters degree at U.N.C.—C.H. At R.J.R., she teaches Sociology and European History. Miss Benbow's hobbies include knitting and swimming.

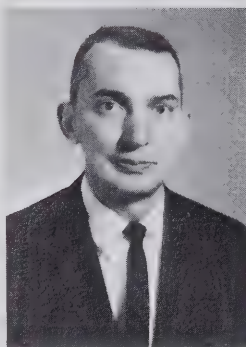

Mr. Charles Ragland, B.A.

Mr. Ragland, teacher of Economics and History, has an outstanding coin collection. Also, he enjoys travel which, he says, helps greatly in the teaching of history.

*Mr. McLean Mitchell
B.A.; M.A.*

This year Mr. Mitchell added humanities to his teaching. During Easter he took his advanced placement class to New York City.

Miss Linda G. Smith, B.A.

Painting for enjoyment, dancing and listening to music are the hobbies of Miss Smith, R.J.R.'s new art teacher. Miss Smith teaches Art I, II, and III.

ART

Students seek creativity in art

Gay pictures and posters decorating the walls of the Reynolds Lobby, star shaped Christmas ornaments dangling from the ceiling above the stairwells, and various clay figures are just a few of the creative works of the art department.

Under the guidance of Miss Linda Smith, a newcomer to Reynolds this year, the art department has offered students instruction not only in the fundamentals of art but also in proper technique and style of art.

Interested art students, wanting to try something new and exciting, even went so far as to plan "A happening" this year. This proved to be a thrill for all those who participated.

Mr. Robert A. Smith, A.B.; M.A.

Although directing both the band and the chorus takes up most of Mr. Smith's day, he still finds time to arrange music, paint, and play jazz piano.

MUSIC

RJR's pep band plays for Deacons

Many moods are set by the Reynolds music department. They vary from rock and roll and jazz to pop and classical music.

Honors were bestowed on the Reynolds marching band when it was named as the best in the Christmas parade. Several band members appeared on television to accept the award.

Pep rallies rocked with the beat of the chapel band. The constant drum beat and the big brass sound helped the spirit to rise from all the students.

At Christmas the chorus presented a program of holiday music and later in the year, a chapel of "pop" music.

Bach quartets were played by the four members of the string ensemble. A Reynolds pianist accompanied them in their numbers.

Miss Leila Graham, B.S.

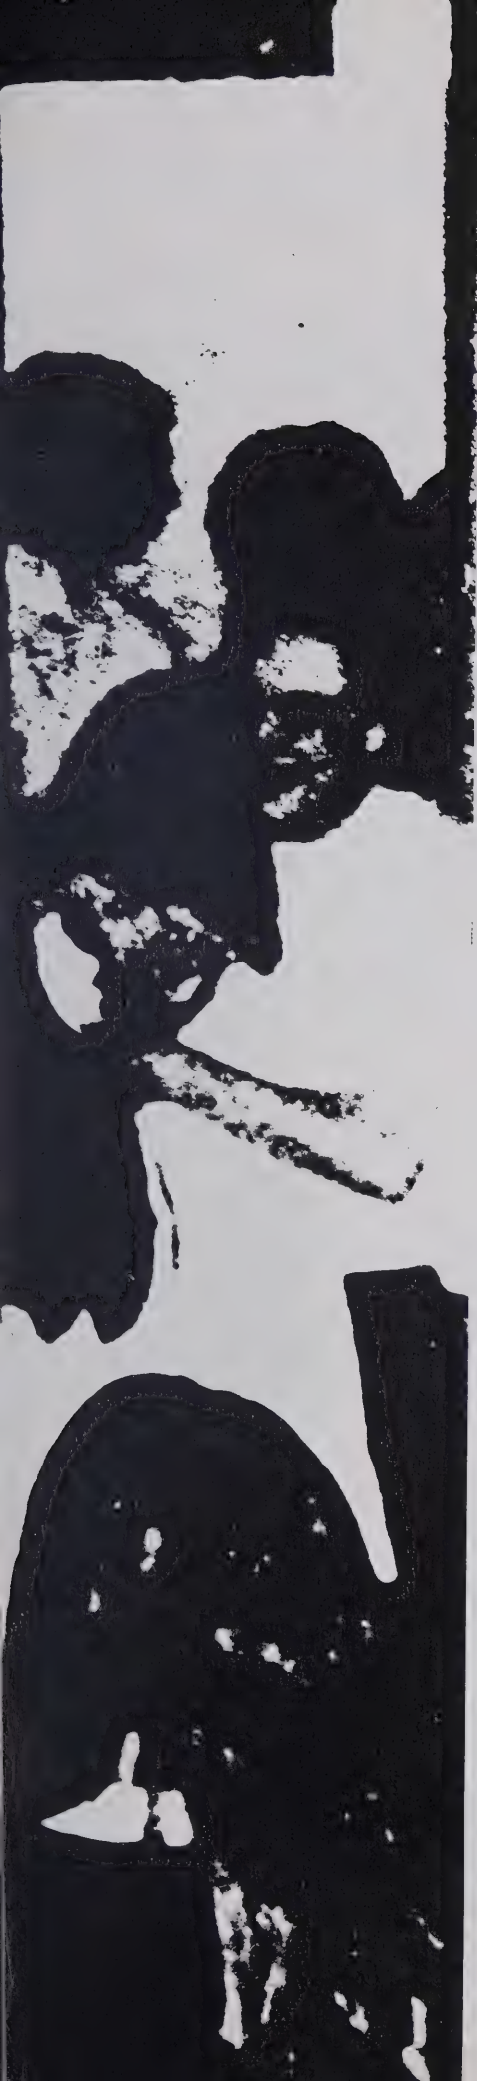

Miss Graham, band director at Mt. Tabor, taught orchestra at Reynolds first period every morning.

Mrs. Hazel Flack, B.A.
Teaching U.S. Government and U.S. History takes time, but Mrs. Flack finds enough time to enthusiastically sponsor the House of Representatives.

Mrs. Mary Pearce, A.B.
In addition to teaching U.S. and World History, Mrs. Pearce co-sponsored the House of Representatives. In her leisure hours she enjoys reading.

SENIOR CLASS LEADERS

Reynolds Demons capture

Mary Ann Todd, treasurer; Peter Hawley, president; Bobby Masten, vice president; Cathy Cowling, secretary

For three years, the 1968 senior class of Reynolds poured its soul into a class building, a gymnasium, and an auditorium. Out of our midst came many leaders. We produced thinkers, athletes, and musicians. These we take with us in June.

Still we leave much of ourselves here. Each cheer at a pep rally, each book in the bookroom, each desk in Room 222 verifies our presence.

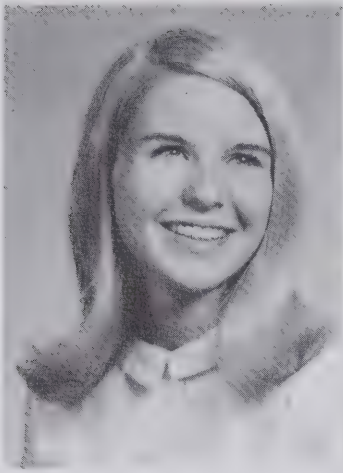

Our years are spent. All we can do is remember them; we cannot relive them. Now is the time to pass the leadership of RJR on to the thinkers, athletes, and musicians of the class of 1969. Yes, we were here; we can never return.

Class Day committee members are Judy Jones, Liz Schellenberg, Jon Zeliff, Tommy Gunn, Dee Britt, Peter Hawley, Molly Barber, and, not pictured, Alix Hitchcock.

Seniors receive last lockers and first class rings at the start of the 1968 school year.

Dull, Stockton,

It was not just any year, it was our junior year; a special one filled with experiences for us, the new upper-classmen.

We faced our problems with that "Black Demon fighting spirit!" We survived college boards, U.S. History, and those last days of physical education. We planned a successful Junior-Senior, ordered class rings, and led our athletic teams to victory.

With anticipation we watched the senior class say their good-byes on Class Day and realized that we would soon step up to the position of seniors, complete with prestige and responsibilities.

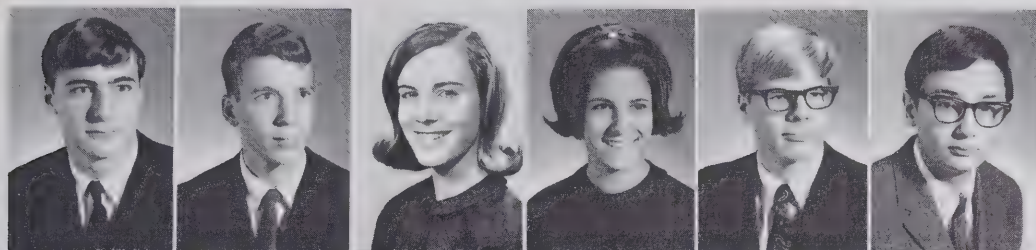

Junior class officers are Keith Dull, pres.; Susan Stockton, sec.; Gail Berryhill, treas.; and Pete Jones, v-pres.

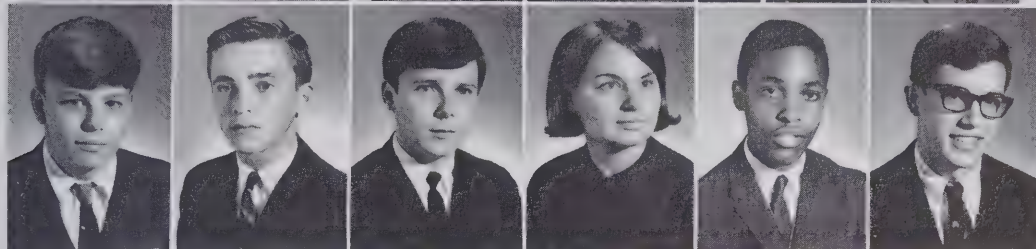

Sitting: Peggy Gheesling, chief; Judy Lambeth, assistant chief. Standing: S. Stockton, S. Fogleman, J. Benbow, G. Berryhill, K. Christopher, P. Disher, P. Willis, V. Remishofsky, S. King, M. McTyre.

Walking down the corridors of RJR that exciting first day, we gazed in awe down the looming halls, wondering where we would fit in—wondering what we, the sophomores, could contribute and what we might gain.

However, it was not long before we too were captured by the Reynolds spirit, running new football plays, memorizing passages from Julius Caesar and learning the laws of the highway.

Soon our sophomore year will be only memories—thoughts to cherish in coming years.

Nhora Amaya, Eduardo Villareal, and Martha Chinchilla, three of the four Bucaramangan students at Reynolds this year, visit in downtown Winston-Salem.

Balcony seats were "home" to the sophomores during chapel programs.

Sophomore class officers are Robin Johnson, v. pres.; Bunky Flagler, sec.; Ann Berryhill, treas.; and Carl Lounsbury, pres.

House of Representatives makes rules for school

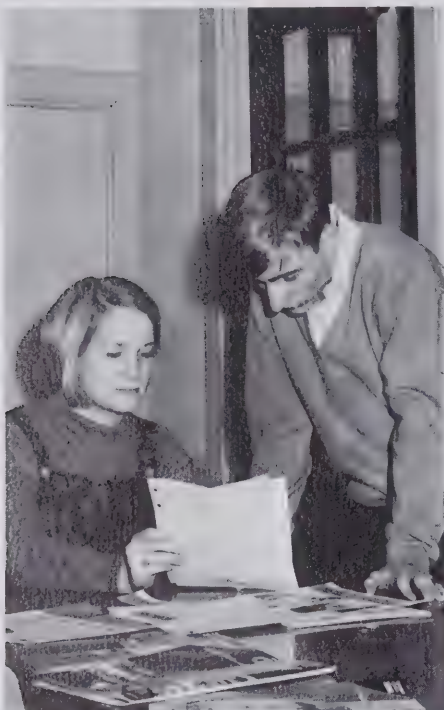

Fifty-eight Reynolds students make up the House of Representatives. Members meet every Tuesday to improve school appearance, and other general problems. House members are supervised by Mrs. Flack and Mrs. White. One of the largest functions of the House is the establishment of the House Court, which deals with infractions of the school rules. The Court is composed of the four House officers, five permanent members from the House, and a rotating jury of four other House members.

Speaker Craig Dalton discusses house court business with Peggy Gheesling.

Permanent members of the House Court are W. Baker, P. Gheesling, C. Dalton, B. Totherow. Standing: A. Smits, L. Thornton, D. Johnson, B. Smith, J. Jones.

Kneeling: B. Totherow, speaker pro tem; W. Baker, treas.; P. Gheesling, sec.; C. Dalton, speaker. First row: E. Boyer, M. Armstrong, P. McCollum, L. Snively, J. Perry, M.K. Cranfill, E. Parrish, B. Thursday, the 15 members of the Student Council meet to review honor cases and to set punishments for offenders brought before them. But the Honor Court is just one of the functions of the Council. Supervised by Mrs. Reich, the Council performs a large service to the school by making students aware of Reynolds' self-government system. The Council, working with the House of Representatives, explains the operation of the student Government in a late-summer orientation chapel. More information is provided to all Reynolds students through the Student Handbook and the Honor Code chapel.

Reynolds students elect their representatives to both the House and the Council in the Spring. Nominations are made by a committee, and by individual nominations from the floor in a special election chapel.

Woody Fox and Sami Ousley work on the student council bulletin board under the watchful eye of Mrs. Reich, their sponsor.

Pupils strive toward honor society inductions

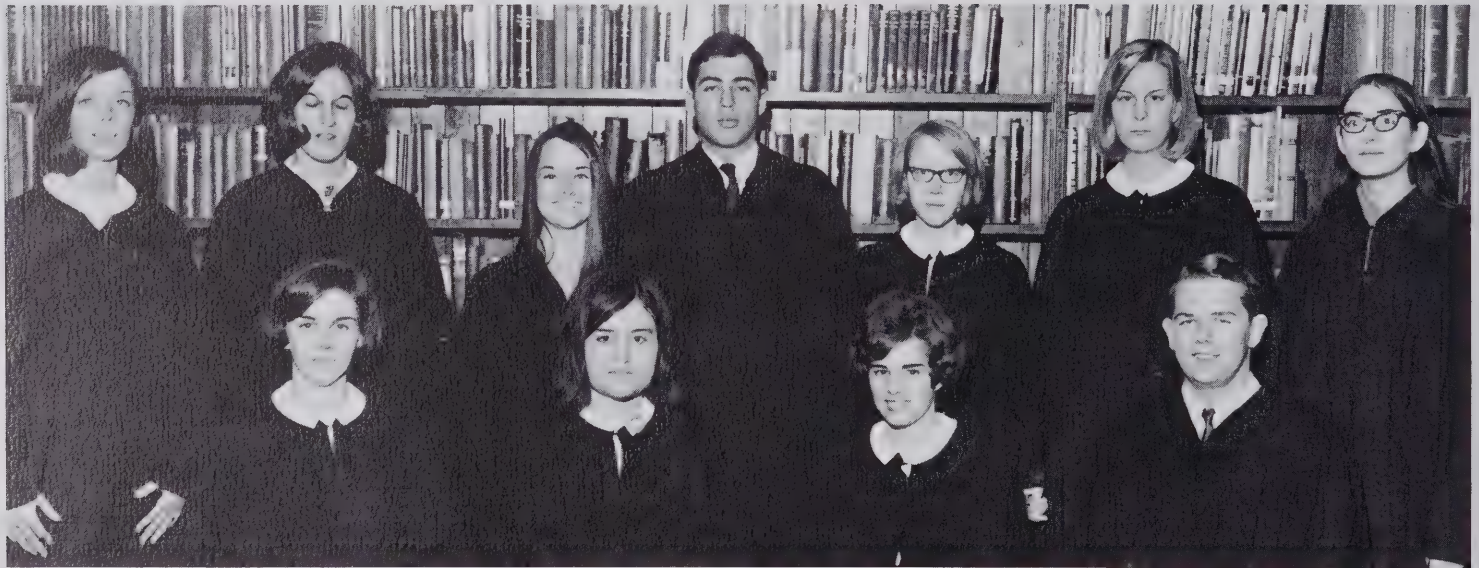

Two honor societies at RJR recognize students who excel in the French language and the journalism fields.

The French National Honor Society inducts members twice a year. All members of this organization have a high scholastic average, an S on deportment, and have had at least two years of French. This year the society sponsored a Twelfth Night party. Requirements for the Quill and Scroll International Honor Society are a high scholastic average, an S on deportment, and samples of work published in either the Pine Whispers or the Black and Gold.

Inductees, approved by the faculty and journalism sponsor are admitted in the spring.

Members of the Quill and Scroll honor society are seated: Jim Pope, Liz Schellenberg, sec.; Molly Levin, v. pres.; Maureen Mulhern, Bill Spaulding. Standing: Molly Piner, Richard Barnes, treas.; Allison East, Ferrell Clay, Eddie Sherrill, Rusty Brantley, pres.

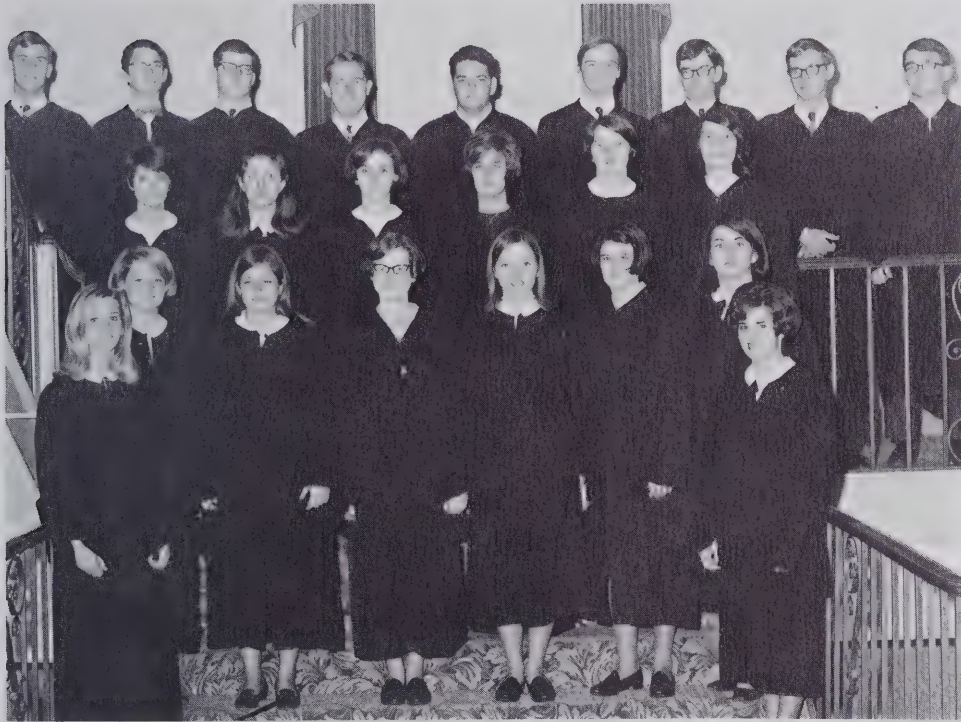

Sitting: Connie Nance, pres.; Ruth Furches, v. pres.; Betsy Allen, sec.-treas.; Paul Knouse, program chairman. Standing: Amy Key, Paula Michael, Debbie Howard, Mike Pinnolis, Linda Wright, Sandra Coe, Janet Grassia.

National Honor Society taps 24 new members in fall

Choir robes of black, electric candles, choral harmony in our Alma Mater: these are the memories that will be pondered sentimentally by the members of the Brevard Hoover Chapter of the National Honor Society.

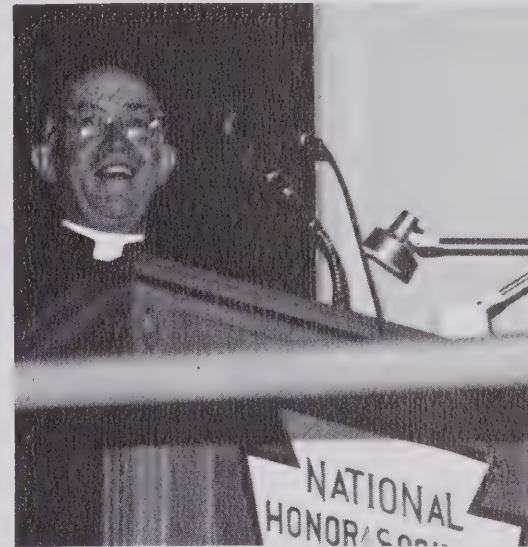

For diligent students throughout the country, NHS has become a goal for which to strive. With its high ideals of outstanding character, strong scholarship, unselfish service and dignified leadership, it is a goal well-worth achieving. Semi-annual inductions meant that the lengthy hours of study put in throughout school-life were not for naught, but were instead to lead to an exuberant feeling of accomplishment and much deserved self-esteem.

Speakers practice to improve techniques

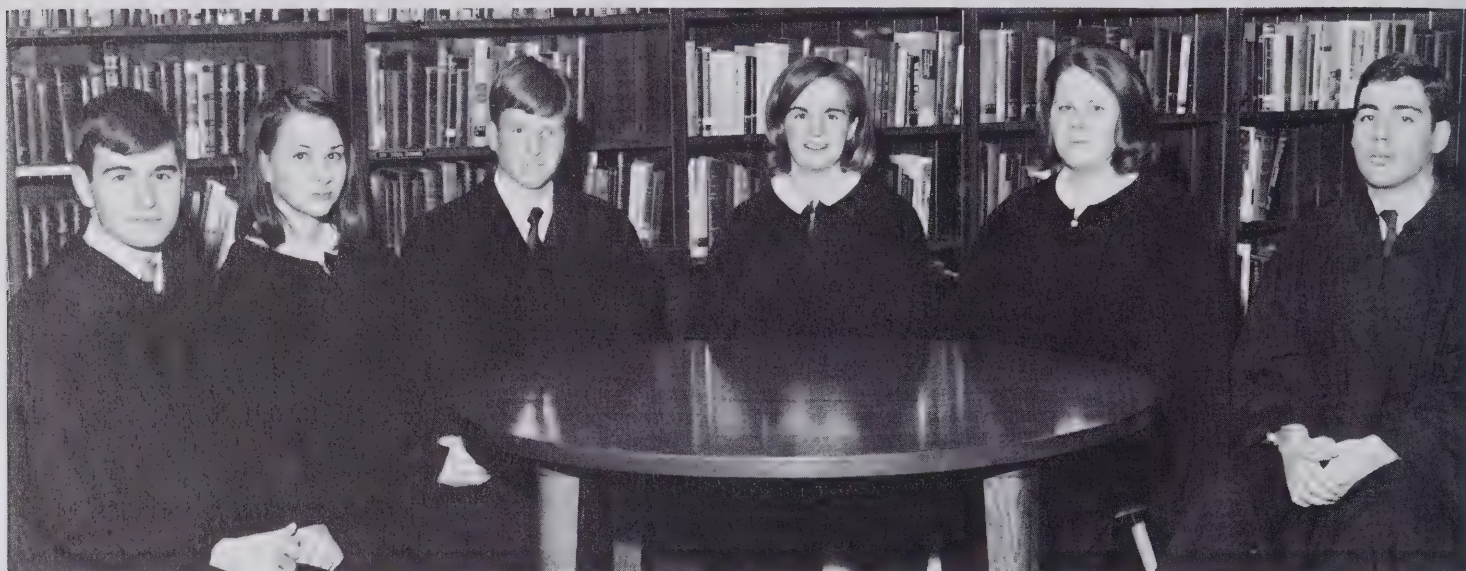

Parliamentarians and debaters, under the guidance of Mrs. Garrison, hold the twenty-five points needed for membership in the National Forensic League in high regard. This society was designed to cite those who are accomplished in parliamentary procedure and in the art of debate.

To recognize over-all excellence in speech, the Masque and Gavel National Honor Society was formed. Activities such as the Recitation and Declamation contests, and the World Peace Speech contest are but a few ways to accumulate membership points.

Masque and Gavel members are Fred Butner, Beth Garrison, v. pres.; Ricky Rice, treas.; Molly Barber, pres.; Judy White, sec.; and Mike Pinnolis.

Dramatists present original production

To become a member of the Thespian Society, students must hold a membership in the drama club, and must accumulate a minimum of ten points. These points are awarded to all participants in theater work, both on stage and behind the scenes.

KEY CLUB

Key Club clears student, faculty parking lots; sponsors 1968 follies

This year's Key Club completed many projects which were useful to the school. The boys helped distribute books and fix the clocks. They cleaned their courtyard and added color to it by planting flowers. At Thanksgiving they presented a turkey to Shep, one of the janitors. The Key Club also co-sponsored the fall and mid-winter Homecoming Dance. Voter registration for the school bond referendum was another of the services that the Key Club supplied.

One of the highlights of every school year at Reynolds is the Key Club Follies. This year they were again both entertaining and profitable with President Chris Sawyer serving as MC.

Mr. Rodney Williams and Mr. Charles Ferree acted as faculty advisors.

SENIOR SERVICE CLUB

SSC members struggle to better Reynolds High School

The Senior Service Club, under the direction of Mr. Charles Ragland and Mr. Philip Ashley, accomplished many tasks. Distributing textbooks to classrooms in late August, clearing the parking lot of dirt, rocks, and glass, furnishing "beat-em" tags for football games, sponsoring the football and basketball homecoming dances, and selling Demon stickers and buttons were duties performed by the club. The courtyard was painted dark green with gold letters and pin.

At the traditional Thanksgiving Chapel, the SSC presented Wade Roseboro with a turkey. An annual Christmas tea honoring the faculty was given in the library. Refreshments were provided by the members' mothers. The club enjoyed successful winter and spring socials. On bitter, white days, the boys were called upon to shovel the layers of snow from the school's sidewalks. These and other helpful activities filled the Senior Service Club's year.

Melody Bennick was chosen SSC sweetheart.

Literary Arts clubs enrich student life

Whether they were surrounded by the chill of a cold auditorium, rehearsing a play, or in room 311 every Monday discussing tactics for a future performance, the members of the Dramatics Club could always be found working diligently. As a result of their strenuous work, they gave to the student body two one-act plays and a full length Christmas play.

A student takes his pen in hand and begins on clean white paper to write a verse or essay. He may destroy the paper and begin again several times until his work meets with his specifications. This is an act committed at least once during the year by a member of the Scribbler's Club or any student interested in writing. The end result this year of these acts was The Scribbler which brought hours of enjoyable reading to all students.

DEBATING

Debating team competes in WFU speech festival

Members of the debate team competed in several tournaments during 1967 and 1968. Among them were the High Point tournament and the Wake Forest Speech Festival. Four junior boys served on the varsity debate team, and students from all grade levels made up the debate club.

Junior varsity debaters: Fred Butner, Charles Jenkins, Jon Sawyer, Robert Rawls.

Dancing Boots Perform on WSJS Popcorn Theatre

Summer had barely started when it ended for fifty-seven Dancing Boots. Lazy weeks at the beaches came to a halt.

Maripaul Johnson and Mary Ann Todd drilled the girls strictly and taught them dances such as "Carousel," "Gold-finger," and "Music To Watch Girls By."

It was a good year; the practice, complete with hair-curlers and sunburn, paid off. Every girl has memories that make her smile: the blue cummerbund, the Christmas parade, and finally the Bob Gordon Show.

Chief Dancing Boot Maripaul Johnson directed the girls throughout the year.

Johnson, Todd lead majorettes through paces

Choreographer Mary Ann Todd worked diligently for the Majorettes.

What would a football game be without the twirling and dancing girls that we all know as majorettes? Their poise and charm add sparkle and color to the pre-game band performances.

Chief Maripaul Johnson and choreographer Mary Ann Todd have worked long and hard instructing the girls on intricate twirls and dances.

Being a majorette involves much hard practice. During the summer months the majorettes remain on the field practicing long after the Boots have left.

Smiles, head-high kicks, rhythm, precision, and perfection accurately describe the fourteen Reynolds majorettes.

Chrissy (lower left) admires the Majors.

Majors frequently performed at pep rallies.

Cheerleaders perform at convention

With shouts of "two-bits!—four bits!" the varsity cheerleaders brought Reynolds fans to their feet cheering and encouraging the Black Demons on to victory. New cheers and motions were introduced to the student body in pep rallies by Chief Karen Hancock and assistant-Chief Libby Thornton. Plagued by "cheerleader throat," cold weather, and hot gyms, the enthusiasm of the Demon cheerleaders was not dampened. After much patience and waiting, the Demon cheerleaders had their picture in the Sentinel's teen-page.

Representing Reynolds at a convention in Greensboro, during the fall, the girls displayed "Reynolds' Spirit" away from school and the playing field.

PEP BOARD

Pep board works late on spectaculars

Keeping rooms bright with bulletin boards and students well-supplied with beat-em tags are just two of the contributions the Pep Board makes each year to the Black Demon spirit. With two representatives from each home-room, the club meets every Monday afternoon to discuss projects for boosting RJR teams to victory.

This year, under the direction of Sami Ousley, Elizabeth Sloan, and Miss Caldwell, the Pep Board sponsored the preliminaries for both the fall and mid-winter homecomings. This included contests for the most-originally decorated car and the most descriptive bulletin board.

Each week club volunteers display a spectacular to inform all students of the week's game and to increase enthusiasm.

Spirit boosted by JV, Children's Home Cheerleaders

Seven junior girls were always around to cheer for the J.V. football and basketball teams. During the fall, they stayed late in the afternoons to yell for the team; in the winter, they came to the gym early to encourage the boys to win. These faithful J.V. cheerleaders were needed and they gave their full support to the boys.

Being a Children's Home cheerleader involves more than just wearing a blue and white uniform; it means giving all you have, and more, in spirit and pep to the team, whether it is ahead or behind. These girls, led by chief, Betty Plyler, cheered all of the Fighting Methodists' teams on to victory.

Children's Home cheerleaders are as follows: Doris Giles, Betty Plyler, chief; Alice Robbins, co-chief; Sue Reap, Linda Beck, Karen Culp.

Spelling "V" for "Victory" are J.V. Cheerleaders Joanna Wilson, Ellen Boyer, Susan Fogleman, Vicky Remishofsky, Karen Christopher, Louise Parrish, Susan Stockton.

COLOR GUARD

Flagbearers lead RJR band in parade

By spending long hours practicing, the color guard learned how to march well and carry flags properly. They preceded the band down the field at halftime, and marched in the Christmas parade. Led by Connie Tate, the squad of eight girls received new uniforms and a new American flag this year.

Color guard members proudly carried the flags at football games.

Color Guard members are Dottie McGee, Martha Young, Becky Lanier, Mari Adams, Linda Pitts, and Janet McCollum.

Hard work, dedication pay off in journalism work

Trying to fit one panoramic year into 208 pages was the goal of the Black and Gold staff. Work started as early as August, when the theme was selected; progressed into February when the staff turned all work over to the publisher and finally ended in May when the hours of work were bound and distributed to the anxiously awaiting student body.

Four editions of the Pine Whispers, kept the student body informed on happenings around school. News stories, editorials, features, and sports articles were written and re-written in order to please the newspaper staff as well as the student body. Deadlines were met and papers printed to give a composite story of the Reynolds Panorama.

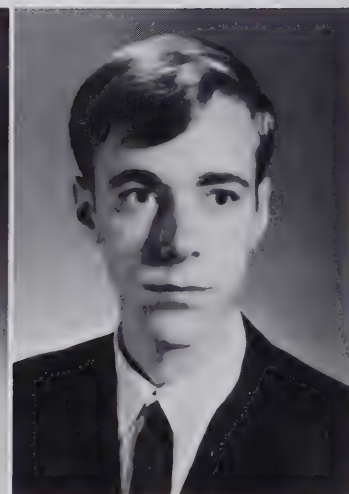

Pine Whispers staffers JoAnne Stonestreet, Liz Schellenberg, Anne Pearce, Molly Piner, Mary Ann McNeill, Pam Thrush, and Richard Barnes examine the finished product.

Jim Pope, Jeff Byrd, Bob Paxton, Leslie Johnston, and Fred Bell prepare the paper for distribution.

Soldiers in Viet Nam receive gifts from Girls' Council

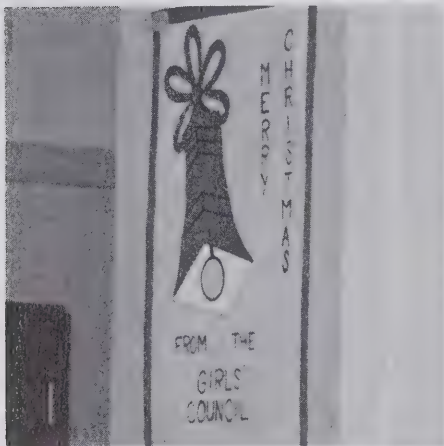

Thirty-one junior and senior girls belong to the Girls Council, which was organized at Reynolds in the fall of 1965. Miss Janie Weaver helps the girls with their projects which are always beneficial to the school.

Decorations for the football homecoming dance were provided by the club. Members also talked with the sophomore girls in order to help them become better acquainted with Reynolds. Before Christmas, the girls took on the big task of decorating the school in colors befitting the season.

President Judy Gold discusses future plans with Miss Weaver and the other officers.

New uniforms brighten band's performances in '68

This year's band was a prize winner. Under the direction of Robert A. Smith, the band won top awards in the Christmas parade, as well as a fine rating in the state contest. Equipped with new black and gold uniforms, the 100-member band performed at halftime for every football game. They played at chapels and presented concerts at Christmas and in the spring. The band also performed for several junior high schools. The 1968 band had the honor of performing in the band festival in Knoxville, Tennessee.

Bimonthly club meetings supplement teacher's work

German and French Clubs were the only language clubs that held meetings during the class period. Students in each class prepared and presented the programs.

In their bi-monthly meetings, the members of the German Club learned about the people and customs of "Deutschland." At the Thanksgiving chapel, the president of the German class presented a turkey to a maid. Mrs. Hepler is planning to take a group to Germany this summer to study.

Programs that the French Club presented were all given in French. This year the members played games, viewed movies, and held a Christmas party.

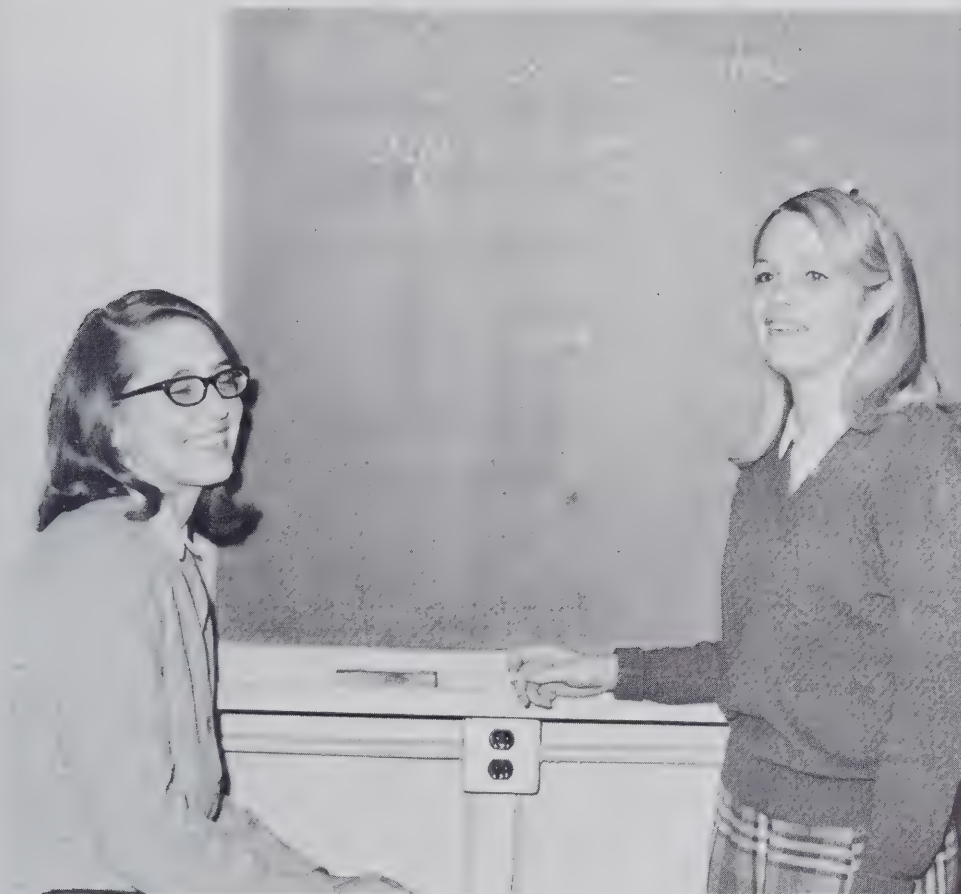

French club officers Connie Nance, pres.; Betsy Allen, sec-treas.; Paul Knouse, program chairman; and Ruth Furches, v. pres., plan the club's activities.

Members of the German Club are as follows: First row: M. Bouvier, M. Gokhale, B. Totherow, L. Schellenberg, M.A. Todd, R. Cranfill,

Guests speak to Latin and Spanish clubs on customs

This year the Spanish Club met monthly in the cafeteria. Under the sponsorship of Mrs. Villalon, the club gathered and planned projects and meetings. They held a dinner at the end of the year.

Mrs. Nipp, who was new to Reynolds this year, advised the Latin Club. At the annual banquet, held in May this year, the members dressed like early Romans and enjoyed their delicacies. A speaker presented a program on the Roman Theater.

Spanish Club officers Lenora Topp, president, and Judi Smith, vice president, directed the activities of the club throughout the year.

Y-Teens' Santa Claus visits children's ward at hospital

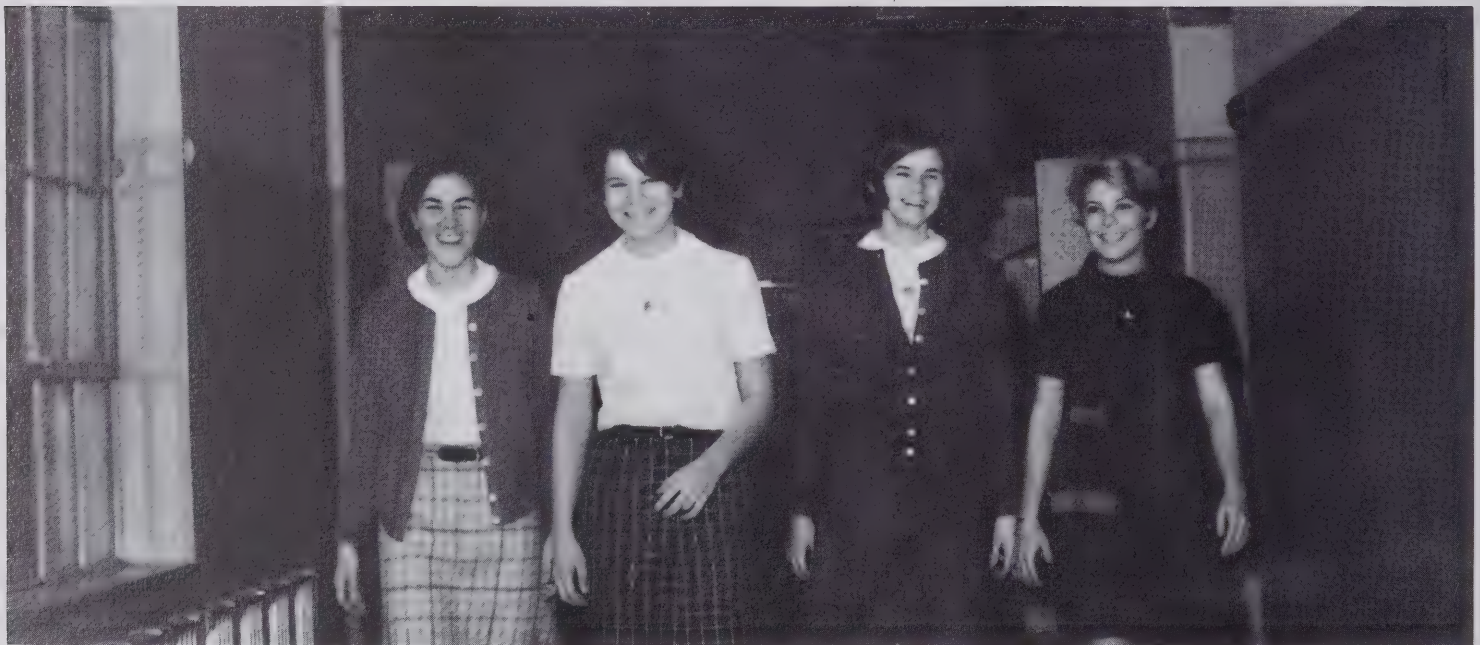

Affiliated with the YWCA, the Y-Teens provide a chance for girls to participate in varied service projects and special interest activities.

Selling doughnuts was the big project made successful by the Senior club. Other undertakings were collecting for UNICEF, selling Christmas candles, and sponsoring a bake sale. Teas and parties were also given.

In November a World Fellowship service was held for all Y-Teens at the National Cathedral in Washington, D.C. This trip highlighted the year.

Y-Teens hold a Christmas party in the children's ward of Kate Bitting Reynolds Memorial Hospital.

Three Hi-Y's perform services for RJR and community

Reynolds' Hi-Y club is divided into three sections by classes. All the sections are sponsored by the YMCA. Mike Wilson, Phil McClung, and Skip Long act as presidents of their respective clubs.

Serving the school is one of the Hi-Y's aims; they do this by raising the flag each morning. Listening to speakers, planning parties, and participating in a city-wide basketball tournament are some of the activities of the members.

In fellowship and leadership, the Hi-Y continues to uphold the high ideals on which it was founded.

SOPHOTEERS

Girl's service club aids faculty and school projects

Under the guidance of Mrs. Marjorie Stephenson, sophomore girls served Reynolds through their club, Sophoteers. Sophoteers provided these girls with constructive activity designed to help others. This club also gave them the opportunity to meet the students at Reynolds. These girls could be seen washing boards or dusting rooms for the teachers after school. If they were not doing this, they were probably meeting in the cafeteria to plan future activities or to hear speakers.

These girls also supported the annual clothing drive and food collection. They also decorated rooms with greetings at Christmas.

Members of the Sophoteer steering committee are as follows: sitting, Ann Lowery, Bonnie Priddy, Cathy Boyce, Cathy Blevins. Standing are Emily Graham and Sharon Satterfield.

Sophoteers Marty Shore, Becky Whitaker, Ann Dillon, and Debbie Conrad put up posters urging Black and Gold ticket sales.

SERVITEERS

Serviteers make table decorations for Junior-Senior

Junior girls who were interested in service to the school joined the Serviteers. Miss Sara Williams sponsored the junior girls in their annual clothing drive held in the fall. At Christmas the members went Christmas caroling at the Belo Home, and in the spring table decorations made by the girls brightened the Junior-Senior. Members served at all dinners held in Reynolds cafeteria.

Program chairman Vicki Remishofsky and secretary Sally Rider discuss future plans.

Betsy Smith, president, and Gail Berryhill, vice president, study a list of Serviteer members.

Hall monitors control unofficial traffic in building

Through the cold drafts of winter and the heated radiators of summer, sit the deserted hall monitors. Chosen from their study halls, these people play an important part in the functioning of Reynolds by enforcing House Court rules. While studying, they check passers-by for that yellow piece of cardboard, commonly known as the hall pass. Not only do they patrol the halls, but hall monitors also act as hosts or hostesses to visitors who may need directions in the school. Even though one may fall victim to these people, he will admit that Reynolds would not be Reynolds without its hall monitors!

Necessary for the running of a competent library are the services performed by our library pages. Not only do they prepare monthly lists of new books for teachers, but the pages also hold many social activities. This spring several pages attended the meeting of the NCHSLA in Durham to exchange ideas on assisting in the library.

Office and guidance office pages are best described as "jacks-of-all-trades." They can be runners from the gym to the fourth floor, secretaries, distributors, or official greeters. Nurse's room pages assist those students who are sick, or listen to the false complaints that have served for the purpose of getting out of class.

Reynolds blazes

August 7 marked the starting date of the Reynolds Demons' quest for their second straight 4-A conference trophy. Their task was completed on November 11 following a 13-7 victory over the Atkins Camels. The game concluded Reynolds' regularly scheduled games.

Compiling a record of 10-1, the Demons' loss came in the first round of the state play-offs against the Durham Bulldogs. The squad's impressive winning column can be attributed to several aspects of football. Working diligently on the diagraming of plays, the coaching staff presented a solid and highly successful offensive team. Relying on aggressive blocking and quick running backs, Reynolds built a fearsome ground game.

Not until late in the fall did the Demons comprise an intense aerial attack. Junior quarterback David Patella's sharp passing kept his opposition con-to undefeated regular season -- Durham only loss stantly off balance.

Holding foes to a minimum amount of points, a tenacious defense enabled Reynolds to out score the opposing offense. The punting toe of Tracy Lounsbury gave excellent field position to the Demons by keeping the ball deep in the foes' territory.

Graduation brings the loss of eight starters, leaving thirteen lettermen to carry next year's load.

Speedy backs pace versatile offense to ten victories

Head coach Herman Bryson led the offensive backs in drills to improve their quickness and timing. Many days were spent running and re-running plays until they were performed to perfection. Running through the "Blaster" (a machine used to improve balance and power) was a new experience for the ball carriers. Speed and discipline characterized one of the most feared backfields in the state.

This year's highly rated team featured a fine defensive unit and one of its strongest points was the backs. Coached by Bob Cox, they halted many opponents' drives by intercepting passes or making crucial tackles. They also helped out the offense by scoring five touchdowns.

Forward wall key to successful year

When asked by Coach Bryson what type of team was believed to be in store for the 1967 football season, a large majority of the returning championship team answered with much skepticism. The line was supposed to be a weakness of the Reynolds Demons. The boys composing this forward wall must have persuaded themselves otherwise. An outstanding backfield is not effective if the squad lacks ability in the line. Reynolds relied on a strong running attack made possible by the skilled blockers up front. Coaches Doug Crater, Jack Tesh, and Jack Mitchell, all of whom worked with the offensive and defensive line-men, are to be credited for producing a highly-praised line. Help was provided by the seven-man sled and several ninety-pound bell dummies.

Future stars gain skill and maturity

Unidentified Reynolds JV is brought down after a long gain against North Forsyth.

The junior varsity football team experienced a year of development and maturity under coaches Clark Taylor and George Neesmith. Compiling a record of 1-6-2, Reynolds "Baby Demons" prepared themselves for the upcoming varsity competition. Before the first game against High Point Central, the J.V.'s learned basic fundamentals. Running, blocking, passing, tackling, and pass catching were among the drills presented at practices. Sophomores Ricardo Sockwell, quarterback, and John Dilliard, tackle, were elected to serve as co-captains. Home games for the Demons were played Thursdays on the Hanes Park field at four o'clock.

Going to battle against the Black Bisons in their opening game, Reynolds salvaged a tie of 6-6 as High Point scored a touchdown on the last play of the ballgame. The only victory of the season for the Demons came a week later against the West Forsyth Titans. The contest ended in an impressive score of 20-6. The following six losses and another tie smashed any hopes for a winning year, but success came in different forms. Producing such determined players as John Gardner, Kerr Spencer, Charlie Dulin, Robert Dobson, and Steve Parker, the squad boosted the chances of Reynolds keeping the Central 4-A trophy in future years. Many of the participants are placed on the junior varsity team to gain experience in playing while reaching their full potential. Confidence and pride in their school, their teammates, and themselves rise during the challenging weeks of practice. During this period of time, if a member of the team proves himself to be varsity material, the coaches do not hesitate to move the boy up. Fierce competition is wrought by this method as each player strives to reach his goal. Several of the outstanding junior varsity footballers were used by the varsity during the week of the state playoffs.

Varsity cagers overcome

Dan Traylor (50) scores 2 of his 18 points in the first game against Atkins.

Experience and new ideas spelled success for this year's edition of the Reynolds basketball team. Coach Howard Hurt in his first year at Reynolds instilled goals of hustle, pride, and victory into the Demon cagers. Starters throughout the season were Dan Traylor, an all-state performer in this his junior year; Richard Bailey, sharp-shooting co-captain who served as the floor leader; Larry "Sweet Weasel" Little, an aggressive but smooth forward whose style of play pleased the spectators throughout the year; and Chris Turner, a fine outside

Sophomores develop agility for varsity

Just as today's varsity basketball players did in past years, sophomore varsity hopefuls on this year's junior varsity squad worked to develop skills necessary in playing varsity basketball and at the same time gained valuable playing experience.

Preceding each varsity contest, the Reynolds stars of tomorrow put on a display of exciting basketball that gave spectators a glimpse at Reynolds' hopes for continued winning seasons in the future.

Under the guidance of Coach Jack Tesh, aggressive Carl Lounsbury, quick ball-handling Regg Lyle and promising center Nigel Alston sparked the all-sophomore team.

SWIMMING

Swimmers undergo rebuilding year with Neesmith

While most Reynolds students slept last winter, nineteen devoted boys were at the YWCA swimming pool. These boys were members of the Demon swimming team, and were practicing for their meets. Mr. George Neesmith, who taught at Wiley, coached the swimmers this year.

Tri-captains Bo Davis, George Munford, and John Pfefferkorn led the team in individual competition, medleys, relays, and diving competition.

Because Parkland is the only other school in the Winston-Salem system with a swim team, Reynolds competed with out-of-city teams such as Page, High Point, and Grimsley. The Demons also swam in a state meet at Chapel Hill which was held in March.

Tri-captains of the Demon swimming team were John Pfefferkorn, George Munford, and Bo Davis.

Grapplers shake slump -- finish first in Group Two Wrestling is probably the fastest growing spectator sport at Reynolds. Almost one hundred boys went out this year, second only to football in student participation. After many long work-outs in a room which is heated to facilitate the loss of weight, the number of would-be grapplers had decreased somewhat. Reynolds wrestlers traditionally start slow, losing a majority of the matches before Christmas; but, after the holiday break, they usually come on strong to defeat many opponents.

This season was not any different; in matches before Christmas, they struggled to a mediocre 2-2 record. In the weeks following, however, they rolled over 5 straight foes to finish with a 11-3 record. In the sectional tournament which was held at Reynolds, the Demons finished 7th in a field of over 17 schools.

TRACK

Cindermen take conference title

In keeping with their past records, Demon track men made the 1968 season a strongly successful one. Under the direction of new coaches, Howard Hurt and Jack Mitchell, boys could be seen every afternoon burning up the cinders at Hanes Park.

Carrying a large part of the load in track events were veteran record-holders

Stan Crews and Thomas Little. Honors in the field department were brought down by Tracy Lounsbury and Mike Stafford. Pacing the team throughout the season were Reynolds' 32 returning lettermen. The fine over-all performance of the squad is credited to this large number of experienced participants.

By improving starts, Thomas Little hopes to lower his time in the 440 and break the school records which he set last year.

Harriers endure hardships, capture third place

Cross country is perhaps the loneliest sport at Reynolds. Long hours of running to build endurance are required.

Endurance and stamina are two qualities possessed by every cross country runner. Each day during September and November, team members work out at Hanes field under the guidance of Coach Howard Hurt.

Cross-country is a race against the clock and other team members. There is only one race each meet in which all participants run a prescribed two-and-one-tenth-mile course. The winner is the boy who has best used skill and strategy to outpace his opponents.

Reynolds completed this year with a fine record. Runners George Phillips, Art Barber, and Dale Stanley gave outstanding performances for the Demons this year.

Runners jockey for good positions at the start of the 2.1 mile race.

Experienced pitching coupled with Hard hitting and stable pitching were the chief factors in giving Reynolds one of the best baseball teams in the school's history. Standouts returning from last year's varsity squad were infielders Scott Graham, Conrad Graham, Jeff Byrd, and Don Pope. Fred Bell, Chappie Petree, and William Hunt formed an experienced pitching staff. Catcher David Blevins, pitcher Jack Potter, and infielders Ed Gannaway and Mike Wrege were up from the JVs to add depth to the Demon line-up. Starting sophomore outfielders Regg Lyle and Dickie Witt promise future victories for RJR.

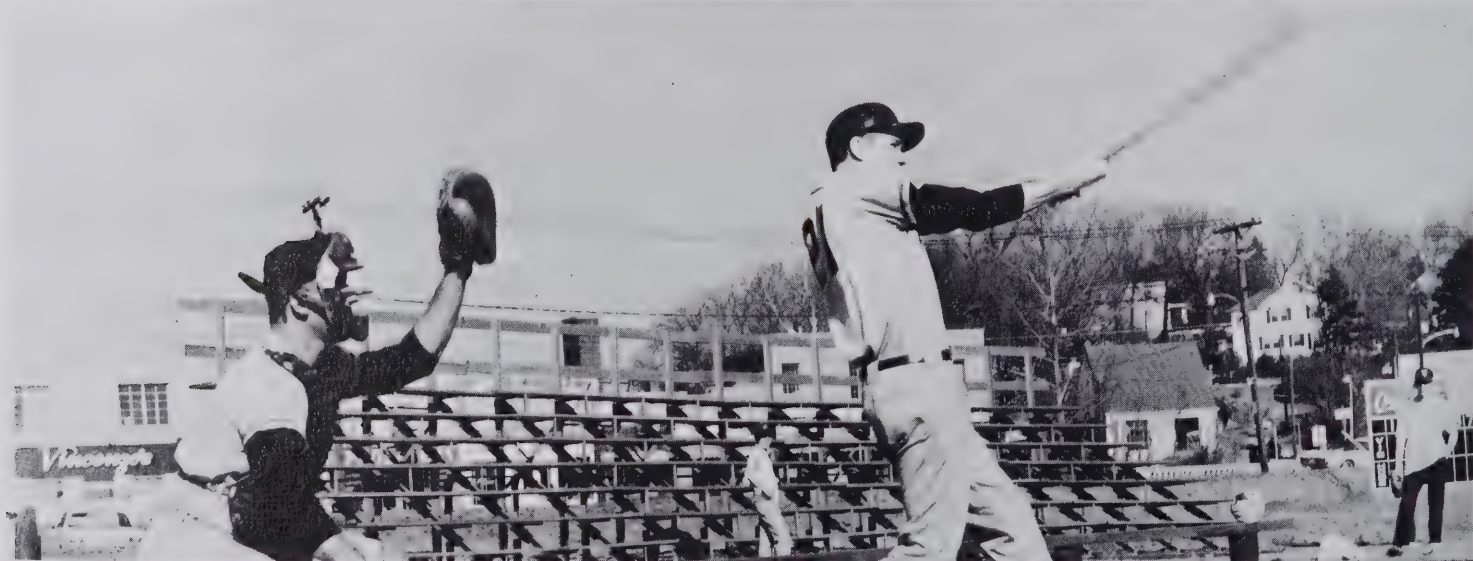

The Demon's conference schedule consisted of two games each with Parkland, Atkins, North Forsyth, East Forsyth, and West Forsyth. Mr. Bob Cox completed his second year as the team's coach.

Fred Bell, a leading pitcher in the Central 4-A conference for two years, follows through after releasing a blazing fastball.

Fighting Methodists boast best record in many years

Children's Home completed this year's football season with a 5-3 record. This was the second year that the fighting Methodist have competed as an independent instead of playing in the North Piedmont Conference.

Victories were recorded over Gibsonville, Denton, and Stoneville. Ramseur fell at the heads of the Methodist twice. Mt. Tabor, a cross city rival, Ledford, and West Davidson, a ranking 2-A power, were the only teams to defeat the Home.

Supplying the punch on offense were seniors Lee Dysart, Carroll Plyler, and Tommy Davis; junior Gary Pinnix; and sophomores Mike Huffstickler, Ray Robbins, and Ronald Williams. Joe Bridges, Broch Conners, and Mike Bowles were standouts on defense. Bob Dunnigan served as head coach for the Children's Home gridders.

Since many members of the team were underclassmen, prospects for the future look bright.

Captains of the 1967 Children's Home football squad were Lee Dysart, Gary Pinnix, Carroll Plyler, and Tommy Davis.

Players on the Children's Home football team are Mike Gillespie, Ronald Williams, Jim McDougale, Ray Robbins, Mike Bowles, Joe Bridges, Mike Huffstickler, Tommy Davis, (19); Gary Pinnix, (13); Carroll Plyler, (35); Lee Dysart, (22).

Although this year's record was not up to usual, the Children's Home basketball players were not lacking in ability. Co-captain Carroll Plyler, a senior, and Gary Pinnix, a junior, top the Home's scoring honors for the '68 season. Rounding out the starting five cagers are seniors Lee Dysart, Mike Gillespie, and

Earl Brown. Entertaining opponents at the Methodist's gym, the boys contests are played on Tuesday and Friday nights at 8:30. Weakened by the loss of Gary Elkin, Tommy Greenwood, and Don Nelson, Children's Home fought for each victory. Although Plyler, Dysart, Gillespie, and Brown graduate this year, bright spots in the '69 line-up include Pinnix, Ray Robbins, Ronald Williams, and Mike Huffstickler.

The girls' CH basketball squad was led by sophomore Linda Beck, senior Dianne Whitt, and high-scoring junior Betty Plyler. The team played at 7:00 p.m. before the boys' games.

Weight program contributes to excellence in athletics

Approximately seventy-five athletes, from all sports, participated in the second year of weight training at Reynolds. The boys worked out after school on alternate days to build up their strength and stamina.

Three different clubs make up the whole program. The boys are divided into three groups, according to the amount of weight they are able to work with.

Two winning football seasons are proof of the effectiveness of the programs. Mr. Bryson is the instructor for this group of boys.

Under the direction of Mr. Clark Taylor, returning as coach after a year's absence, the tennis team strove each spring afternoon on the Hanes Field courts to improve their game in preparation for strenuous, competitive matches.

Hopes for a winning season for the team were placed on seniors Chris Sawyer, John Pfefferkorn, and Charles Jenkins. Many new faces also appeared in the team line-up this year.

This year the Reynolds linksmen turned out early in order to keep up their fine record in the 4-A. Making up in spirit and determination what they might have lacked in experience, the golf team showed up quite well against their opponents. Senior Vic Crutchfield, juniors Ted Kulp and Russell Perry, and sophomore Eddie Pinnix led the team to a fine record.

Hard-working boys earn letters for sports

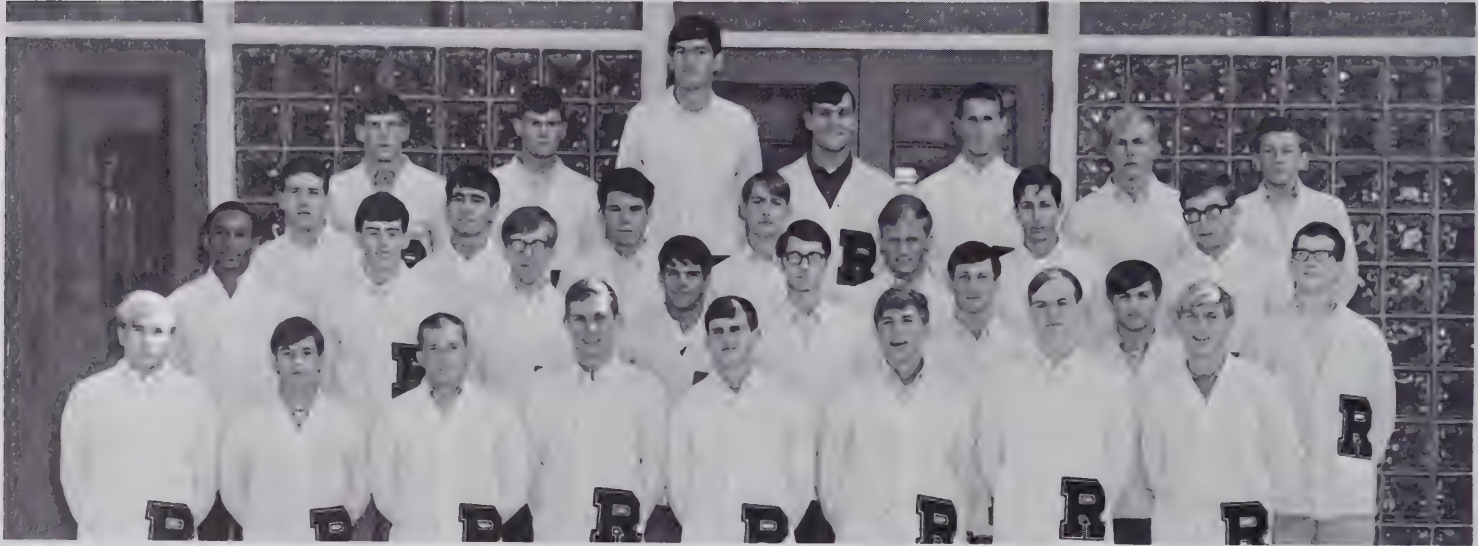

To become a member of the Monogram Club is the desire of many Reynolds athletes. In order to join this organization one must earn a letter in any field of sports and attend the meetings regularly. Being one of the largest organizations at RJR, the Monogram Club conducts its meetings in the Green Room before classes. Officers elected early in October were as follows: Mike Swain, president; Rick Hauser, vice-president; Roger Littlejohn, secretary; George Munford, treasurer.

These lettermen got their activities underway by sponsoring several victory dances in the gymnasium after football games. All profits were used to promote athletics at Reynolds. Participating in the various drives throughout the year and ushering at basketball games and wrestling matches highlighted the club's year. Football homecoming exhibit winners were awarded cash prizes by the Monogram Club.

Under the guidance of Mr. Bob Cox, the boys devoted both time and effort to bettering Reynolds' spirit.

"A sport for every girl, and a girl for every sport"

A car wash with a water fight (using buckets of water), and an initiation retreat with "Grendel" are only two memories of about fifty girls who comprise one of RJR's most active organizations. On the side, of course, members participated in the usual sports of speedball, basketball, volleyball, and softball.

Demonstrating school spirit, the G.A.A. collected clothes for the clothing drive and presented a turkey to Sonny for Thanksgiving. In the spring, the group attended a play-day in Greensboro and honored their mothers at a banquet. One of the high points of the banquet was the presentation of a $100 scholarship. Mrs. Roddy worked hard as sponsor and coach of speedball, volleyball and softball, while Miss Bullard assisted by coaching basketball.

OFFICIALS

Officials encourage good sportsmanship, fair play

Directed by Marsha Dalby and Eileen Bailey, the Officials' Club is composed of some of the hardest-working girls at Reynolds. They are also the most physically fit, not to mention their alertness, fairness, and skill at making quick decisions. Officials who run up and down the court, as well as those who score and time, are the backbone of the intramural program. In addition to serving at Reynolds, one group of referees went to Wiley to officiate for a basketball playday for junior high schools.

Girls who want to be officials must attend classes after school for four days and then pass a test on the rules and regulations for each sport. G.A.A. members earn points toward awards by calling speedball, basketball, volleyball, and softball games.

GYMLEADERS

Gym leaders help students and teachers

About twenty-five girls assist Mrs. Roddy and Mrs. Brower in the physical education classes. Their duties range from checking showers and answering the telephone, to checking papers and taking complete charge of the class.

To become a gymleader, a girl must apply personally to Mrs. Roddy at the beginning of the year. Soon after school started, club members met with their president, Pixie Glaze, to learn exactly what their duties would be. Some were surprised to learn that equipment that seemed to appear out of nowhere during their sophomore year had to be hauled out of deep, dark closets and cleaned by hardworking gymleaders.

President of the gymleaders, Pixie Glaze, prepares to type with Eileen Bailey's assistance.

SPEEDBALL

Girls scrap their way to a 4-3-1 winning season

With the opening of school in autumn, twenty-five girls began polishing their skills of kicking, passing, and dribbling for the 1967-'68 speedball season. Their aim was to improve their record, proficiency, and sportsmanship. Practicing daily (often in extremely warm temperatures) the girls prepared for their first game in which they would oppose East. Beating East 13-7, the team was on its way toward fulfilling its goals.

Always a hard-fought contest, the West game was won by West on their own field. Meeting at R.J.R. later in the season, the girls battled to a 13-13 tie. Two losses to Parkland marring their record, the Reynolds team balanced the standard by twice defeating North. Another win against East caused their final tally to be 4-3-1—the best in several years.

After the last game, the girls held a supper at the home of Daphne Hall to evaluate the past year and to plan for the next.

Girls on the varsity team practice many afternoons in chilly weather.

BASKETBALL

Eighteen girls play varsity basketball

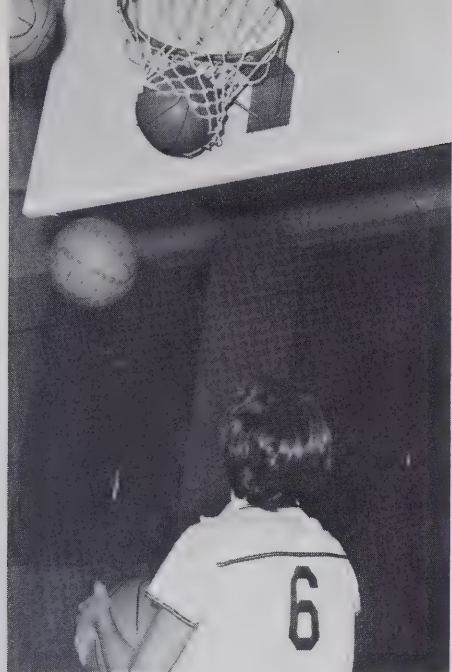

One of the many extra-curricular activities for girls at Reynolds this year is varsity basketball. This sport gives girls a chance to demonstrate their skills, compete with other schools, and have fun while earning points for the G.A.A.

To be eligible for the team, a girl must have a "C" scholastic average, an

"S" on deportment, and be chosen by the coach following a week of tryouts.

Composing the team are eighteen girls, two managers, and two score keepers.

Coaching this year's team is Miss Jackie Bullard.

Patsy Bagnal watches as basketballs "swish" through the net.

Most girls find that boys tennis shoes are best for playing basketball.

Perfecting foul shots could mean the difference between a victory and a loss.

Girls' Varsity Basketball members are N. Shutt, D. Durham, D. Hall, S. McElfresh, A. McClesky, E. Jones, R. Bunce, D. Holt, P. Glaze, manager; D. Lee, D. Hildebrandt, B. Binkley, G. George, J. Boyte, P. Bagnal, M. Levin, M. Durham, K. Gallins.

Team members serve, volley way to third place

Excitement mounts as six girls on the Reynolds varsity volleyball team step into their positions on the court. Their coach, Mrs. Roddy, sits impatiently on the side lines waiting for that first serve and the even more important first volley. She is anxious to see whether the girls will use the skills she has so earnestly taught them.

During the game the referee calls out such expressions as "foot fault" and "side out"; but his most popular call by far is "point for Reynolds." Shouts of joy escape from the spectators each time Reynolds scores.

When the final whistle blows and all is over, twenty tired, happy girls trudge home victorious.

Varsity volleyball team members attempt to return a well-placed volley.

Awaiting a teammate's set-up can be the most tense part of a game.

SOFTBALL

Mrs. Roddy leads girls to victory

Girls at Reynolds are just like Charlie Brown; they always return to the pitching mound when spring comes. Although they use a softball instead of a baseball, they still have that same streak in them that makes them determined to win.

Last year the team won the championship of their section in the Winston-Salem/Forsyth County school system. Mrs. Roddy coached the team to victories over North, Carver, and Atkins. With many returning players and some promising sophomores, the team anticipates another winning season.

Class Poem

It is over finished gone — —
floating back through the pools and rapids of memory.
Reality recedes as the river lengthens.
Life is good, is bad;
these were three good years; these were three bad years:
but now gone.
Now they remain in books and in pictures in books;
and they exist as subjects of random reminiscings;
and, yes, they stand in memory silent — — the clock the halls a desk a book a thought the walls the room a look a test the bell the smells the stair the cars a yell a tree a prayer
 a smile a race

 a mood a face — —
and lo— — there is another face and another and more words and smiles and moods.
Compounded daily for three years, these make us wealthy.
The day to leave is upon us.
This day brings a mixture of sadness and gladness;
it ends
and yet begins.

And we are glad that it shall pass and yet shall mourn its passing.

Class History

There can be no single history for the class of 1968, for an accurate class history concerns the personal development of several hundred people. Our class history had its start in several hundred places, has progressed through the years along several hundred paths, and upon our graduation will veer away from Reynolds in several hundred directions. Even to consider the history of these many students during their years at Reynolds would be a mammoth task. Reynolds has affected each member of our class in a different way and has stimulated a variety of reactions. Some have glided through Reynolds and some have struggled through. Some have known pleasure; others, disappointment; and still others, discovery. There have been cynics, skeptics, and workers. Just as it would be unfair to emphasize the views of one of these individuals as the feelings of the entire class, so it would be unfair to suppose that a factual account of the events of the past three years at Reynolds could do justice to the many moods and experiences which have filled these years.

We cannot give you, our classmates, memories of experiences you have never had or moods you have never felt. But we hope that by presenting random notes as a variety of people might have written in their friends' annuals, we may recall the surroundings where your memories were formed and may place you back in the halls, among the crowds, before the 8:20 bell . . . in your own history.

Random Recollections

... We sure must rate. They saw us coming and decided that they ought to fix up the old building. Remember sitting in history and listening to the slate from the roof whish down those wooden troughs and smash with a bang into the truck? And those workmen hanging around and spitting tobacco in the halls?

... ever get used to those picnic tables by the cafeteria? Or the snack bar? We didn't have anything like that in junior high. And the Stairs—climb, climb. (At least we can go up and down the same set, not up some and down others.) And "Hey punk! Yuh gotta hall pass?" And having to stand up in English just to say "yes."

... What a welcome that state championship Reynolds football team gave us a two-win season and a rainy homecoming. And the basketball team was just great too—everybody was terrific that year. The problem was that they just didn't have enough sophomores on the teams. Like me ...

... I think one of the neatest things that happened this year was the first chapel about the House Court and the rules of the school. It kind of surprised me that the other students took their own government and behavior so seriously. I guess that when something belongs to you, you take better care of it.

... like that flood on the third floor in the French room or the radiator that fell off the wall in the math room ...

... Well, we're big drivers now that we've got those big licenses. Remember all those hours of mobile unit with the clicking computer in the back to tell you how much you couldn't drive? Then finally putting your sweaty hands on the cold steering wheel of a real car and driving all over the real road? And then, a week after you did get your license (third try) how you smashed ...

... Yeah, and we had our first exams—only five more times. I never thought I'd finish studying that biology and English. I had to relearn all of my Julius Caesar memory lines ("Let me have men about me that are fat"). Everybody else was outside playing in the snow. But I'll never forget that feeling of "Great! I'm FREE—I can forget it all now!" after the last one.

... I though if I heard "typical sophomore" one more time I'd scream ...

... Well, it's almost summer. In a few days the juniors and seniors won't be able to bother us anymore. The worst part of the whole year was walking through all those boys on the landing each morning. It looked like a meeting of the Mafia or something ...

... Thanks for my first date at Reynolds—the Twirp Dance. It cost you a lot but I'm sure it was worth it to you. (You never did carry my books.)

... I sure am sorry about Mr. Tandy's leaving. He was a great principal! I'll never forget the time I was called to the office; he was pretty nice to give me a second chance. The next time, well ...

Our first year of high school had passed. Had we realized Reynolds was different from junior high? Had we become a part of the school yet? To be sure, most of us had found some area of interest at Reynolds. For some it was clubs or sports; for others it was the start in planning careers through Junior Achievement or distributive education; for yet others it was involvement in debating or student government. Where would our interests lead us? What would our junior year bring?

... At least we were moved down a couple of rows in the auditorium. I used to get nosebleed during every chapel because of the altitude of the upper balcony. And remember Mr. Quaker

Oats? Or that fellow with the science exhibit?

... so many dances this year—but at least we could drive ourselves to them. I remember last year when your parents ...

... I still say managers are the most important members of the team. You "stars" would forget to tie your shoes if we weren't there. If it hadn't been for us managers, I bet we wouldn't have made it to the state finals in football or in basketball.

... I'll never forget the time you fell down the stairs while you were going up ...

... I thought you'd never make your weight in wrestling; but you did, and we came out on top in the sectionals. I don't think I'll be able to reach 120 next year.

... The snow sure saved us this year by postponing exams, even though I bashed my car up on the way home that morning. We all needed that extra day off to recuperate.

... Man, didn't we draw the crowds this year at our swim meets? If you counted the judges, coaches, and swimmers, we might have had almost fifty spectators.

... I'll never be able to forget the "girls" of the chorus line or your "ugly man" costume for the March of Dimes Carnival this winter. But the $500 went to a good cause, and we all had fun wetting down the teachers.

... Hurrah! No first aid for us! At least we have the distinction of being the first class at Reynolds not to do something. But someone got even with us for this by making us wait till next fall to get our class rings.

... I wonder if our anticipation of vacation made us choose "Summer in the City" for the Follies this year. Anyway, those two performances were more riotous than any summer I've ever had! The park and the nightclub and the zoo and the barber shop—it was a wild tour. We'll have to work hard to top it next year.

... I bet there will never be a Junior-Senior equal to ours. When the old Bamboo brigade arrived, I thought I'd die laughing. Your idea for getting the Buddha made our "Sayonara" perfect. The cherry blossoms, the bridge, the parachute, the fire-breathing dragons, the murals, and the paneled teahouse—it was all so much work and yet so much fun!

Then suddenly we were no longer juniors; we became seniors. Was it too late for us to try to help the progress of the school? Did our last year pass too quickly? Were we too busy with increased work and responsibilities, with the pressure and panic of college and career preparations to give something of value to our school during our last year?

SENIOR YEAR

... Not too much luck with those courts, cleaning the pools out with acid—rea-smart! Then spending a fortune on grass seed to have those painters come and stomp plaster into the ground. And the Big Christmas Tree Contest...

... that Parkland game—all those touch-downs! The crowds went wild, remember—everybody hugging and kissing and clapping and shaking each other. It was better than the Homecoming Dance.

... laying bricks and sweeping the parking lot and mowing the grass. Sometimes I wondered whether we were members of the student government or part of the janitorial service. But you know, we really did get something accomplished this year—I mean in the student newspaper and the Interclub Council. I'll admit I was often discouraged that we couldn't do more, and I'm sad that we won't be here to see the results of some of our efforts; but it was good that we did what we could.

... and about Tuesday teachers started asking me if we were going to have any food at all on stage—hinting that I'd have to rob the A&P that night. But then Wednesday morning the food just poured in. And we sure stretched out the delivery; some of us got out almost all day. Those people really appreciated the effort (except that one lady who had us take it back).

... and pep rallies were more fun, since we finally sat downstairs. That spectacular we made—I'll never forget it—I thought we'd never make that demon stand up! I didn't even mind making all those many beat-em tags, since our teams were so good. I never dreamed our class would do so well—4-A champs twice in a row. And the basketball team had what it takes too...

... I guess those six miles of walking downtown were worth it, since we won the trophy for the best band in the Christmas parade. Luckily my blisters healed up in time for the dance during the holidays. Did yours?

... The Drama Club really amounted to something this year. I think our Christmas play really hit home with the students. And our final production—that must have been the first time in ten years that the amphitheater has been used...

... term papers, lab reports, book reports, more College Boards and Achievements, that A.P. exam, plus those hundreds of meetings—remember the good ole days when we were sophomores with nothing to do?

... Remember when you had to help me get all those toys out of my car? I hadn't known before then that you were in the Industrial Arts Club. I'm glad your toy drive was such a success. (It was about time to give away all my old dolls anyway.)

... As wild as your ideas were, even they fitted into the weird menagerie of colored lights, strange music, and people at the Art Club's "Happening." And you actually got one of your drawings in the Scribbler? I'm just kidding. I know you worked hard on it—and your poem looks great in print.

... I know I've already congratulated you, but I want to write it here. I'm really glad that you were accepted at your college, even though I won't be going with you. But we'll see each other this summer; and next year when I'm home on leave, I'll try to come down to school to see you. Be sure to come back here on your holidays and stand across from the landing at three o'clock so all the guys inside will be jealous... Best of luck...

... Now it's really over. The work has been impossible at times or at least seemed that way. I wish that back in my sophomore year I could have understood Reynolds as I do now; things might have been different. I can't quite see us up there on stage in our white gowns—exciting but scary. I wonder what will happen to our class—some to college, some to jobs, some to war. Lots of them I may never see again, but I guess I'll meet new faces to replace them. Now I remember mostly the good times. It's sad that they are over, but I'm ready for new and different things.

Now from this point let our memories, like our lives, take flight. For a short while we may feel a void within us when we realize that we are leaving these years at Reynolds behind us. But quickly new experiences, new moods, new interests, and new friends will rush in to fill this emptiness; and in the years to come we may really think of our past. Yet one day on a crowded street we may catch sight of a face which will cause our memories to flash back to the crowds at a ball game, in chapel, or in the halls before the 8:20 bell. And in this way we will return to Reynolds.

Remember those strange, new faces we saw during our first days at Reynolds? Now those same people have become friends with whom we have shared three years filled with unforgettable experiences. For the rest of our lives we can recall these years just passed and cherish their memories. As students, we found the complete meaning of the Reynolds Panorama.

But let us not look back too long. Rather, as we leave Reynolds, let us look to what the future holds.
